Background

Honeybees are an integral part of the human food chain as pollinators of crops. As pollinators they also have an essential role in maintaining mountain biodiversity and the mountain environment. Beekeeping has contributed to rural development through the centuries by supporting agricultural production and providing honey, wax, and other products for home use and sale. To take full advantage of bees, farmers need to take a modern approach to bee management using frame hives and focusing on production of quality colonies and quality honey.

The manual covers the full range of basic topics related to beekeeping development, including the importance of beekeeping in modern agriculture and the use of bees for crop pollination; production of honey, wax and other hive products; honey quality standards; and using value chain and market management to increase the benefits accruing to beekeepers. The focus is on participatory hands-on training, with issues explained in simple language with many illustrations. We are confident that this manual, and the country-specific versions based on it, will be a source of support for beekeeping training across the region, and will help marginalized mountain farmers, women and men, to develop a sustainable livelihood from bees and beekeeping, while contributing to maintenance of a healthy environment.
