Acknowledgments

I had undertook a one month Internship programme in content writing under the online platform “Literpretation”. Like the other interns, I was also assigned to do content writing on various prose and poems. This helped me to gain a deep insight about content writing and how it is done.

I would like to thank Ms.Lathiga and other tutors for conducting a wonderful internship and providing us with guidance throughout the programme, making sure that the internship was a great success. I would like to thank my department, BA English(Aided) and Kongunadu Arts and Science college for giving me this opportunity to learn something new and to develop my skills.

ABOUT LITERPRETATION AND THE INTERNSHIP

Literpretation is an online platform that presents the readers with plenty of educational blogs and contents. The platform is managed by Literature graduates with multiple experience in interpreting English Literary works. The website owner and designer is Ms. Lathiga R.M, who is also a certified IELTS trainer and the COO is Mr. G. Sanjay Singh, Head of the Creativity Department.

Literpretation offers paid internship courses on content writing as well as many other workshops. The duration of courses can be chosen accordingly. The duration of the entire course is three months covering various genres of Literature. The duration of my internship was for a month and I have completed my content writing in poem and prose.

June 23	10 Am	Prose 4 Q
June 26	Before 10 Am	Answer submission
June 26	5 pm	End Meeting

The internship started on 29th May, 2021 with an orientation programme in which we were introduced to our tutors as well as our fellow interns. Followed by was a speech given by Ms. Lathiga , CEO of Literpretation and one of our tutors. We were given a brief introduction of our work and the work process.

On the following days , we were given various topics on which we had to do content writing. The internship started with content writing on poem followed by content writing on prose. I did content writing on some famous poems like “ The Rime of the Ancient Mariner”, “ Brahma”, “ Shakespeare’s Sonnets”, “ Philomela” etc. In prose I did content writing on quite popular ones such as “I have a dream”, “The Second Sex” “Commonwealth literature does not exist” etc.

We were also taught on how we should adhere to the exact format and the importance of avoiding plagiarism while doing the works. Ms. Lathiga also took a detailed class on the cons of plagiarism. The internship was very interesting and effective as we were guided properly and given personal attention by our tutors. The personal feedback by our tutors helped us a lot to correct our mistakes and improve our work. We were also given adequate time for the completion of the work so that work could be done in a better way.

The internship ended on June 26th 2021 with a valedictory function. On 14th July I received my certificate for the completion of my internship.

TASKS INVOLVED

The task involved was to do content writing on various genres. The area of focus was on poetry and prose. We were asked to follow a brief format provided by the platform. Instructions were given regarding the font style, size and format. We were asked to give an elaborate work on the topics given by them.

During the first week, we were assigned to do the content writing on poem with feedback sessions after each genre. In the second week, we were assigned tasks in prose. One of the biggest task was to complete the work on time, with the least number of plagiarism and grammatical errors.

To sum up, we had to

- Research on a given topic by referring various sources.
- To segregate the findings under different headings.
- Put it in a proper layout.
- To edit the entire work to avoid grammatical errors and plagiarism.
- Finally, to send the completed work via email.

CONCLUSION

Through my internship at Literpretation, I was able to get a better understanding of content writing, how it's done and it's scopes in present world. I enjoyed my one month Internship working with the team. It was a really good experience to learn something new and to work with an esteemed online platform.

It also helped me to improve my writing skills and to minimise my grammatical errors. It was also an eye opener for me as through this internship I understood the importance of citing works in articles and the risk of plagiarism.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This is an internship report based on 15 days of internship program that I had successfully completed with Mr. SURESH.J proprietor of “ONS INTERIORS” Company. Every day I spent in the office time gave me some amount of experience. They are also useful to create my new career in this field. This report gives my working experiences about FALSE CEILING and interior works, where I first gained more knowledge about FALSE CEILING, their necessity and their pros. Secondly, I came to know their different styles and types of false ceiling, where it helps me to know which kind of interior work is suitable for commercial and residential work. Finally I was taught to plan designs and to prepare QUOTATION, where it improves my creative and analytical skill. I have attached the work planned by me under the guidance of my supervisors, with the design. I also attached the quotation which I prepared through my working. This report helps to know the basic knowledge about interior work and FALSE CEILING.

1.INTRODUCTION

1.1 WHAT IS FALSE CEILING?

False ceilings are often secondary ceilings that are hung below the main ceiling with the help of suspension cords or struts. These ceilings are crafted from a wide range of materials such as POP (plaster of Paris), gypsum board, asbestos sheets, particle board, aluminium panel, wood etc. They are also known as dropped ceiling or suspended ceiling.

1.2 WHY DO WE NEED FALSE CEILING?

A residential and commercial building is incomplete without a proper roof. A roof is the topmost and an important part of the building offering protection from the elements such as wind, high or low temperatures, sunlight, snow and rain. Besides providing protection, the bottom of the roof serves as a place where occupants of a building can exhibit their aesthetic sense by creating attractive false ceilings using decorative ceiling panels that can please the eye.

In addition to aesthetics, false ceilings also offer functional features that enhance their utility in more ways than one. For instance, false ceilings provide good acoustics where required sounds can be enhanced and at the same time unwanted sounds can be minimized. False ceilings can reflect and diffuse light obviating the need for unnecessary artificial lighting thus lowering energy consumption. These ceiling panels offer fire safety and moisture resistance features as well.

2.TYPES OF FALSE CEILINGS

2.1 Plaster of paris false ceiling

2.2 Gypsum false ceiling

2.3 Wood false ceiling

2.4 Fibre false ceiling

2.5 Metal false ceiling

2.6 Glass false ceiling

2.7 PVC false ceiling

2.8 Fabric and synthetic leather false ceiling

2.1 PLASTER OF PARIS FALSE CEILING:

Plaster of Paris (POP) is the most commonly used false ceiling. Gypsum when heated softens, releases water, and forms POP! When water is added, POP hardens instantly. It is applied on fibreboard or a wood base, which is then suspended from the ceiling to form the false ceiling. The POP false ceiling looks attractive and has a long lifespan. They are excellent thermal insulators.

2.2 GYPSUM FALSE CEILING:

A gypsum false ceiling is made using gypsum boards, sheets, or ceiling tiles. Gypsum boards are larger than ceiling tiles. Gypsum false ceilings are tough, versatile, and economical. It is a sterile sulphate of calcium, light-weighted, and easy to install. Since gypsum is fire-resistant and soundproof, it is a preferred material for drop ceiling.

2.3 WOOD FALSE CEILING:

Some homeowners fancy natural and country-side beauty and serenity in their home interiors. The best way to achieve this rustic look is by using wooden beams on the ceilings. These wooden panels can be used to create several patterns that render a modern and attractive appeal to the ceiling. Wooden false ceilings also make a fine focal point for a room.

2.4 FIBRE FALSE CEILING:

Fibre false ceilings are also known as acoustic or soundproofing ceilings for their sound and heat insulation properties which are achieved by mixing natural and synthetic materials such as bitumen, tars, vegetable fibre, wood and stone. Because of the reinforcements, fibre ceiling tiles acquire toughness, hardness and resistance to fire making them highly suitable for commercial applications in noisy places such as shopping malls, retail showrooms and offices.

2.5 METAL FALSE CEILING:

Metal is a durable home-decor material. Its lustre adds beauty and a sophisticated appeal to the interiors. Metal false ceilings are available in a form of ceiling tiles, planks, and panels. The most common metals used for drop ceilings are galvanized iron and aluminum.

2.6 GLASS FALSE CEILING:

Glass is a non-crystalline, brittle, and transparent material. Because of its transparency, it makes a living or working space look bigger and grand. Therefore, it can be used for the false ceiling of places such as restaurants and libraries. Glass is a good heat insulator too.

2.7 PVC FALSE CEILING:

PVC ceiling tiles solve the problem of dirty and unhygienic ceilings as they are easy to clean and maintain. It is one of the few types of false ceiling that are easy to install.

2.8 FABRIC OR SYNTHETIC LEATHER FALSE CEILING:

Fabric and synthetic leather false ceilings are more ornamental than functional. They can create a special ambience because they can be created in many intricate designs to match with the rest of the interiors. Since they are functionally weak but aesthetically strong, they are useful in temporary situations such as exhibitions or events.

Contrary to what some may think, INTERIOR DESIGN is an art form. Many people think that art is only displayed on tangible surfaces, such as paper or canvas. Any room can be turned into a work of art with little creativity and imagination. Redesigning interiors is a career for many.

It was a good learning experience, got a chance to do:

- Project survey and analysis
- Design concepts
- Preparing designs
- Making quotations
- Clients handling
- Project coordination and managements.

INTRODUCTION:

I have completed my sixteen days internship in GEE VEE TEA INDUSTRIES PVT LTD. The things I have experienced and learned in my internship are enclosed in this report.

I would like to thank Mr. P.Sajeev, the managing director of Gee Vee Tea Industries Pvt Ltd. and other staff members for permitting me to do my internship in their industry. I had a great experience during my internship. All the staff members working there were too friendly and helped me out in my learning process. They were so patient and cleared all my doubts regarding my internship. This experience will help me out in my future.

EXPERIENCE AND LEARNING:

During my sixteen days internship period I learned the detailed process of converting tea leaf into tea dust. And the learning was so interesting.

DETAILED STUDY OF MY LEARNING:

The conversion of fresh tea leaf into tea dust involves five stages.

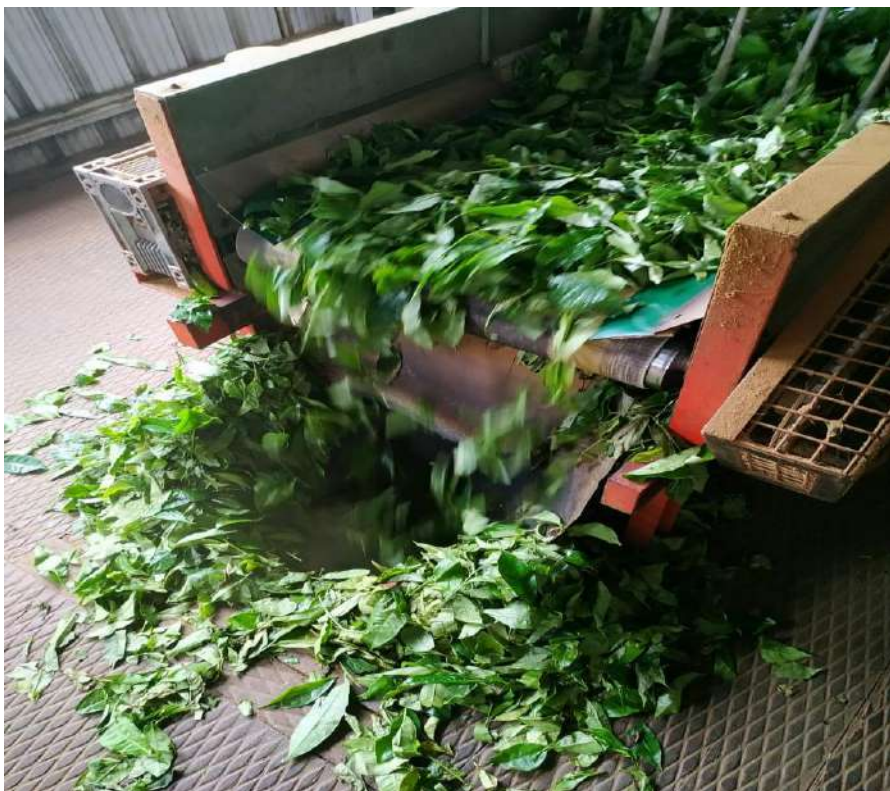

1. Weathering
2. Manufacturing
3. Fermentation
4. Drying
5. Segregation and packing.

1.Weathering:

Weathering is the first stage where the fresh tea leaves are poured on the turbo. Turbo is a big basket like structure and it is netted. The air which is supplied under the turbo help in removing the moist content that are present in the leaf. The fresh leaves can be stored upto 12 hours in the turbo. A vinch like structure runs around the turbo where the leaves are filled little by little manually. The leaves are then poured into the cleaner where the unwanted particles like threads, weeds, etc. are removed. Then the leaves are poured into a hole which takes them to the next stage.

LEAVES POURED ON THE TURBO

LEAVES POURED INTO THE HOLE FOR THE NEXT PROCESS

2.Manufacturing:

The leaves that are poured in the holes are taken directly to the machine where the leaves are chopped. The chopped leaves with small stems turns into a smooth paste like structure. That paste like structure is then transferred to a big drum where the pasty leaves are sized into small balls.

THE CHOPPED LEAVES INTO SMOOTH PASTE

THE DRUM WHERE THE SMOOTH PASTE IS SIZED

PASTE SIZED INTO SMALL BALLS

These small balls are taken into the next process.

3.Fermentation:

The balls are kept at a temperature of 27 to 28 to bring it into the correct texture. They are moved slowly in this place for about one and a half an hour. At this process the green colour is changed into copper brown colour due to the reaction of certain enzymes at that particular temperature.

THE PROCESS OF FERMENTATION

CHANGE OF GREEN INTO COPPER BROWN

4.Drying:

The copper brown coloured tea is taken to the next process, the last process of making tea dust called drying. Here the tea is dried well and tea the tea dust is produced. These are then poured into a big container like structure called dryer. The tea is dried in two stages within the dryer and the moist is removed out. In the first stage, the the tea is boiled lightly by the hot air that is being passed within the dryer. In the next stage, the tea is boiled in a high level by the hot air passed within it and here the tea becomes totally dry and thus the perfect tea dust gets ready.

THE DRYER

TEA BOILING IN HIGH LEVEL

5.Segregation and packing:

The tea dust thus prepared is put in a filter containing 14 holes per inch where the tea of bigger size is separated and 12 holes per inch where the dust tea is separated. These two are named under two grades:

- The leaf grade.
- The dust grade.

THE DUST GRADE

Finally the segregated tea dust is packed and sealed manually. Thus the fresh and natural tea dust is ready for sale. The dried tea or tea dust can be stored for a very long time.

PACKING

CONCLUSION:

I prefer doing internship on this because, being an native of The Nilgiris I wanted to learn the process of convertaing tea leaf into tea dust, which is our primary occupation. I totally enjoyed my sixteen days internship. I am very satisfied with my internship, because through this I learned and experienced things which I wanted to learn. I am very thankful and greatful for being a part of this esteemed tea industry for a short period.

THANK YOU.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT:

I have undertaken the internship program through online from 5JULY 2021 to 17JULY 2021 at SHARVESH AGENCY .I wish to express my sincere gratitude to the management for providing me an opportunity to do my internship. I also thank my department, B.A.ENGLISH LITERATURE (AIDED) and our college for giving me this opportunity to learn something new and to develop my skills.

CONTENT SCOPE:

The internship aimed at providing various knowledge and skills in the field of DATABASE, task assigned was entering customer and account data from source documents within time limits. Compiling, verifying accuracy and sorting information to prepare source data for computer entry. Reviewing data for errors, correcting any incompatibility and checking output.

INFORMATION ABOUT INTERNSHIP:

I have joined for internship in the field of DATA BASE ENTRY through online mode in SHARVESH AGENCY. I handled many new tasks during the period of this internship program.

WHAT SHOULD EMPLOYEE DATABASE CONTAIN:

- Personal contact information such as an address, phone number, emergency contacts.
- Date of birth
- Job title
- Current salary and all pertinent salary-related dates such as raises
- Recruitment details

DATABASE MEANS:

A database is an organized collection of structured information or data typically stored electronically in a computer system. The data can then be easily accessed, managed, modified, updated, controlled and organized. Most databases use structured query language (SQL) for writing and querying data.

EMPLOYEE DATABASE:

An Employee database should contain critical information as well as company-related information. The database can be used to help you better understand your employees and make data-based decisions that push your company forward.

HOW TO MANAGE EMPLOYEE DATABASE:

Employee database software allows you to store, manage and track all employee data. It holds a variety of employee personnel fields such as name, age, job title, salary, length of service etc.,

EMPLOYEE INFORMATION STORED:

This information is usually stored electronically but many include paper records as well, so employers should use both physical and electronic through security methods. The policy should ensure that records are kept as long as needed but no longer, and that records are destroyed securely.

EMPLOYEE MASTER DATA:

Employee Master Data module covers comprehensive functions, including employee profile management, employment and turn over management, payroll data management and so on, which reflects the dynamic status of human resources and thus supports decision making.

MAINTAIN EMPLOYEE DATABASE RECORDS:

- Name, address, phone number and social security number
- Department or division within the company
- Start date with the company
- Pay rate and period
- Whether hourly salaried
- Whether exempt or non-exempt

CONCLUSION:

The work experience I encountered during this internship at SHARVESH AGENCY has polished my knowledge and skills and developed different experience to learn something new in online platform. Overall, my internship at SHARVESH AGENCY has been a success.

I have undergone internship in Mani Higher Secondary School for 20 days. In this time I am very much grateful to meet various professional teachers which made to gain knowledge in teaching. I consider myself as very lucky individual to undergo the internship with young students. This teaching profession made me to gain extra activities in all awakes of work in this internship period. Bearing in mind previous I am using the opportunity to express my deepest gratitude to the Head Master and Secretary Dr K Sathianarayanan who in spite of being extraordinary busy with his duties took time out to hear, guide and keep me on the correct path and allowing me to carry out my internship at their esteemed institution.

I perceive as this opportunity as a big milestone in my career development. I will strive to use gained skills and knowledge in the best possible way, and I will continue to work on their improvement, in order to attain desired career. Hope to continue the cooperation with them in future.

Information of the Institution

Mani higher secondary school, is in Nethaji Road, pappanaickenpalayam, Coimbatore. The school was established by Rasakondalar shri G kuppusamy Naidu family and named after his son late shri G K Govindasamy Naidu, affectionately called as G K Mani in the year 1954. Shri N Chinnaswamy Naidu was the first head master of the school, who is instrumental in making the school one of most sought after by Coimbatore citizens for their children. The school is counted among the top-rated schools in Tamil Nadu with an excellent academic track record. It play an important role in molding and guiding the younger generation and as a result in school. The school is with full fledge library, an auditorium and a computer lab with latest systems. The management and teachers take personal care of every student so as to make them proficient both in their academics and extracurricular activities. with very great difficulty the institution got the permission to run English medium classes along with Tamil medium classes. On the occasion of the Golden jubilee celebrations it is the wish that the school should not stop with the past achievement, but reach greater heights that change is the order of life. It is the hope that the school will rise to the occasion in future and secure greater glories and appreciation from all quarters. The institution believes in wholesome development of an individual and offers an array of opportunities for the young citizens of our country to excel in non-academic areas as well.

Work and Responsibilities in the field

Internship is the most important part of any teacher education program. It gives pupil-teachers hands-on experience to be acquainted with total school practice including teaching, evaluation, administration, clerical works, community involvement, handling student issues, student support services and the like. At first it can be arranged during adverse situations where it is totally impossible for organizing school internship in actual mode. We are now in COVID 19 situation where the total school is declared to be remained closed but in different schools teaching- learning practice has been continuing virtually.

My internship was started on 01 July 2021 in online mode with general introduction to the students of class 5,6&7. In guidance of the respective class teachers, I was able to take classes on particular chapter in Grammar, and supplementary. On my 2nd day, I was well prepared in making lesson plan, so that it help me teach young students with different ideas

DATE	CLASS	TOPIC
05.07.2021	Class 5	Usage of grammar
06.07.2021	Class 6	Supplementary

		(A Tale of two birds)
07.07.2021	Class 6	Preposition
08.07.2021	Class 5	Article
09.07.2021	Class 7	Lesson (Three questions)
10.07.2021	Class 6	Adverb
12.07.2021	Class 5	General activities
13.07.2021	Class 7	Types of sentence
14.07.2021	Class 6	Way to speak
15.07.2021	Class 7	How to take Notes
16.07.2021	Class7	Dialogue writing
17.07.2021	Class 5	Lesson &supplementary
19.07.2021	Class 6	Fluently in English

At end of my internship, that is 20.07.2021 I got feedback from few students about my teaching work. I got immense feeling in the last day the feedback given by the students, literally I was not a professional teacher but those students created me as a professionalist.

Skills Learned and Developed

The internship skills, lessons and insights gained are invaluable for both life and future career. An internship will see you communicating with others in institution. Communication is often one of the underappreciated internship skills and one that greatly affects the working world, whether through emails, phone calls, or face to face meetings. It also provides us a potential career field. Talking of soft skills, can the importance of communication skills be ever put into the words, It's one of the top listed skills that recruiters look for in a resume and something that can get you from bottom to top. Communicating well is a gem of skill which you can learn during your internship experiences.

We won't really learn about work ethics until you are in tangible work environment. In college education, we are used to making excuses for late submission, short attendance and what not! But it is only when we are introduced to the actual environment that we learn work ethics.

Often missed out in the list of soft skills, being responsible is an integral skill required in the job arena. My internship experience makes you more responsible and accountable for what decisions we make and how we execute what's been allocated to you.

It is still important as the others is the Time Management. Earlier, we could miss a class because we had some personal commitments. During an internship which is almost the beginning of our work life, we can't mark the absence on a regular basis. Hence, it helps us to learn to manage our time better by maintaining a balance between our work and personal life, without harming any of them. Soft skills are equally important as hard skills, if not more. So, I make out the use of internship experiences and learn all that it has to offer.

Conclusion

My internship was a useful experience, I have find out what my strengths and weakness are; I gained new knowledge and skills and met many new people. I achieved many of my learning goals, however for some the conditions did not permit to achieve them as I wanted. Two main things that I learned the importance of time-management skills and self-motivation.

It`s my pleasure to thank the prestigious institution Mani Higher Secondary School in allow to do my internship and my great honor to thank the Head master & Secretary Dr K Sathianarayanan for the opportunity in his institution and exposing my strong gratitude to my guide Dr P chitra M.A., M.Phil., B.Ed., PGDMT., Ph.D. Assistant professor, department of English, Kongunadu arts and science college and I would also thank young students for their patience listening. Last but not the least, I would thank myself in having confidence to do the internship.

Thank you

REPORT OF INTERNSHIP IN PHARMACY

1.INTRODUCTION

Pharmacy is the health profession that links the health sciences with the chemical sciences, and it is charged with ensuring the safe and effective use of medicines. The scope of Pharmacy practice includes more traditional roles such as compounding and dispensing medications, and it also includes more modern services related to patient care, including clinical services, reviewing medications for safety and efficacy, providing drug information. Pharmacists therefore, are the experts on drug therapy and are the primary health professionals who optimize medications use to provide patients with positive health outcomes. The term is also applied to an establishment used for purpose.

The Pharmacy is one of the most extensively used therapeutic facilities of the hospitals; it is often of the few areas of hospitals where large amounts of money are spent of purchases on are curing basis. It is also one of the highest revenue generating centers. A fairly high percentage of the total expenditure of the hospitals goes for pharmacy services. It caters to out patients, inpatients, other areas like clinical laboratory.

2.TASKS THAT INVOLVED

FUNCTIONS:

The feature of the hospital Pharmacy are as follows procuring Pharmaceutical items,

- Requisition
- Purchase
- Receiving
- Checking
- Storing.

DISPENSING ITEMS:

- Preparing
- Packaging
- Labeling
- dispensing.

FORMULARY:

There is a Pharmacy Advisory Committee comprising of the director, medical director and then manager of pharmacy etc. This committee has prepared a list of approved drugs that can be prescribed by their hospital doctors. This list of hospital approved drugs is circulated among all the departments. This list is reviewed on a regular basis at a frequency of at least 3 months.

SALES:

The pharmacy caters to Outpatient, Inpatients, patients undergoing surgery and walk-in patients also.

OUTPATIENTS:

Doctors give the prescriptions to the patient which he/she brings it to the pharmacy. The Pharmacist receives the prescription. He/she then places all the medicines and items required one by one at the space below the dispensing counter. She then gives the prescription to the computer operator for entering the particulars taken, amount taken and issue a bill for the same. In the mean while the pharmacist packs the medicines well and puts it in a hand cover. After the bill is generated the computer operator hands it over to the pharmacist. Once the pharmacist receives the bill she gives it along with the packed medicines to the cashier. As the pass box through the cashiers counter is not too big, large amount of medicines cannot be given to the customer through the box. At such times the pharmacist gives only the bill to the cashier. After payment is done by the customer the pharmacist hands over the medicines. The cashier receives the cash from the customer puts a seal saying cash received and gives a copy to the customer and keeps the copy to the customer and keeps the copy with himself.

INPATIENT PRESCRIPTIONS:

The doctor prescribes the medicines required. The prescriptions is brought by the patients attendees to the pharmacy. The drugs are dispensed in the same way as for outpatients and it's the same principle cash and carry.

3.MAIN STORE CHECKING

MAIN STORE:

There are plastic trays in the cabinets. In cabinets tablets, capsules, are stored in the trays and below the trays syrups, tonic bottles are kept. All the medicines, tablets and capsules are arranged in the alphabetical order.

- In the cabinets ointment, lotions, drops, ampoules, fluids, respiratory solutions crepe Bandages, injections are also stored.
- In each tray in the cabinets there are compartments where different company's drugs are stored.
- Each tray is labeled with the drugs in it.
- In the cabinets there is a separate storage area for only syringes.
- Fast moving ampoules, syringes, IV fluids, IV set and lozenges like strepsils and few tables like digene are placed in trays. This provides for easy and fast access to frequently asked medicines.
- There are closed cabinets below each shelf. The drugs are not replaced or placed in the cabinets until the medicine is over or almost over in the tray. Only when it is very less in number new drugs are placed in the tray. Until then the drugs are stocked in the closed cabinet below. This ensures the first in first out principle of drug delivery that is it ensures the drugs which were bought earlier are sold before the new stock being sold.

- There is a separate store area for specific OT requirements. Here the items required for OT like, gloves, masks, orthopedic surgical requirements are stored. This area is called surgical stores.
- There are two cupboards where costly items for surgical need are stored like tracheotomy tubes mesh etc is kept.
- In the same area there is a speaker rack where drugs are kept until the particular distributor takes it back. This separate rack ensures that it does not get mixed with other drugs.

4.STOCK CHECKING

Stock checking is done every half yearly. That is once in 6 months. The management decides upon a date for the stock checking and informs the chief pharmacist. The stock checking is done by all the pharmacy staff except 2 of them who will handle the sales during that period. Stock checking is completed within 24 hrs. A list of all the drugs in the pharmacy is taken from the software. A printout is taken the particular drug is checked and entry is made against the drug name the quantity present. The list at the end of the stock check is submitted to the management. As and when sales of medicines occur during the stock checking so much of the quantities deducted from the list.

BREAKAGE:

Breakage if occurs in the pharmacy, the broken number of pieces are informed to the supplier for replacement.

5.CONCLUSION

From my internship at BALU MEDICALS was able to get a better understanding of pharmaceutical works and how effective it is, I enjoyed working with this work. The training has helped to know the various delegations that is found in the organization and report ability in each work, it was more useful and informative days to gain me more knowledge about medicines.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

First of all, I would like to show my gratitude to the company "INKSPLORE", COIMBATORE for hiring me as a content writer via online. This internship has provided me knowledge and skills to become successful in specific career field. The viewer has spent their great time in reading my content.

DISCUSSION OF THE TOPIC

The discussion made for content writing were specific topics and also steps involved in format like "PLANNING, WRITING, EDITING, WEB CONTENT, BLOG POSTS, ARTICLES, SCRIPTS FOR VIDEOS AND PODCASTS.

The content writing has many kinds of writers like "scripts writers ", Technical writer has a specific chosen easily.

TASKS THAT INVOLVED

Several changeling tasks were also involved in content writing which include every learner.

- ◆ Preparation well structure drafts using content writing.
- ◆ Revising content whenever customers and clients are change.
- ◆ Conducing research in any topics.

CONCLUSION

Overall internship is a really good programs and recommend to my fellow friends.

Its helps to enhance and develop my skills and knowledge. My experience on my internship was equitable and professional also learned a lot.

I Learner from different people. I am grateful and thankful to my superiors. I am encouraging my friends and students to grab the opportunity to do internship as it will help us identity our talents, strength and more.

DOLLAR TEA INDUSTRY

INTRODUCTION

I have completed my 15 days internship in dollar tea industry PVT.LTD Things which I have learned in my internship are enclosed in my report.

Types of production process

CTC TEA PRODUCTION PROCESS:

CTC is about ensuring faster production of a standard quality of tea. To make CTC tea, fresh whole leaves are fed into the CTC tea machines which crush, tears and curl them and process them in a period of just two hours. The resultant tea is an even output of small brown pellets.

ORTHODOX TEA PRODUCTION PROCESS:

While ORTHODOX tea production focuses on preserving the singular virtues of the leaf resulting in fermented tea leaves. While orthodox tea makers use traditional practices during their tea manufacturing process, which can be time-consuming and require a lot of human intervention. Compared to a CTC tea, orthodox tea offers the most authentic tea experience. Orthodox teas, be it black, green, white or oolong are also known for their flavor complexity and delicate make, much the reason why they are highly prized in the world tea market. Freshly produced orthodox tea benefits its drinking in far more positive ways than a CTC tea.

OBJECTIVES:

- To improve the production process and to make high production
- To under take projects for the benefits of tea workers and the public at large by way of corporate social responsibility(CSR) activities.
- To work for furtherance and promotion of tea consumption in INDIA and ABORAD.
- To improve the quality of the product and export more, to make more profit.
- To collect, analyze, interpret and circulate information relating to the tea industry.
- To carry out the and undertake reserch and development works relating to tea.
- To help the tea grower to get the reasonable price.
- To help the economic development of the small tea growers.

FUCTIONAL DEPARTMENTS:

• HUMAN RESOURCES
• MARKETING • PRODUCTION
• PURCHASE
• QUALITY CONTROL

• FIANACE
• MAINTANCE
• LOGISTICS

PRODUCTION LIFE CYCLE OF CTC & ORTHODOX TEA POWDER:

Orthodox tea and CTC tea are different styles of tea production or tea processing and the main styles used in Indian tea making. Orthodox tea refers to loose leaf tea produced using traditional.

METHODS:

- PLUCKING
- WITHERING
- ROLLING
- FERMENTATION
- DRYING
- GRADING
- PACKING

PLUCKING:

Plucking is the first step in the manufacturing process of tea and it refers to harvesting by the hand of tea plant. Here in the industry they differ the tea leaf into two types. They differ the tea leaf by color pure green and center stage of the tea leaf. they differ by A class B class.

WITHERING:

After collecting the leaf from the farmers and they will store the A grade in different place and B grade in different place. The withering is process of allowing the fresh leaves to dry. Some of the industry have special withering rooms, whereas others use the fan in the room and use the open air to make dry the tea leaves.

In here the drying of tea leaves is 14 hours after 14 hours they put into the roller.

ROLLING:

Roller twists and breaks the leaves to release the natural juices. This action activates enzymes that help to initiate fermentation. In they put 350 kilograms of tea leaves. In here they have four types roller. First they put 350 kilogram in 1 roller and they will roll for 45 minutes and they will put it in the shifter.

FREMENTATION:

The fermentation is an oxidation and tanning process of the cell fluids, which have been released during the rolling. For the fermentation, the leaves are spread out on tables in layers of 10 cm. In modern factories, spraying water from rotating ventilators humidifies the room in which the fermentation takes place. During the fermentation - which takes 2 - 3 hours - the leaves change their colour, which gradually becomes a copper-red. This colour is found again in wet tealeaves of the infusion.

DRYING:

The fermentation is finished when the desired grade of fermentation is reached, i. e. as soon as the tea has developed its typical smell and the copper-red colour is dried. For this, so-called tiered dryers are used which are fuelled with wood or oil. The tea is moved through the dryer on a conveyor belt. The starting temperature amounts to 90°C and binds the cell fluid firmly to the leaves.

After the drying process the dust particles used for recycle process. That we can see in the above picture

GRADING:

The black tea, which is released by the dryer, is the so-called raw tea, which is now sieved via a number of shaking, mechanical sieves with varying sieve sizes with which the common leaf grades are separated from each other.

Depending on the sieve sizes, sorting generally yields the following grades:

- ✓ 8FBOP
- ✓ 12BOPTIPPY
- ✓ 12BOP
- ✓ 24BOPFANX
- ✓ 40BOP DUST
- ✓ 40SBOP DUST
- ✓ 40BOPFINE DUST
- ✓ 40 FINE DUST

The first four grades are most valuable tea powder in the market. the taste , quality of the tea powder is also good. Here they use different shifter for the grading.

- ✓ CHOTTAM SHIFTER
- ✓ WINNOWER
- ✓ FIBROMAT

These are the types of shifter using for grading and by using this we can remove the dust particles.

PACKING:

After grading, they use filter to remove the minute dust particulars from tea powder. Then they go for the packing process, they pack in the big package it contains 60 KILOGRAM, by using transport facility they do export to various location. So they can get good profit for their product.

CONCLUSION

Being an native of THE NILGIRIS,I have choosen internship at this tea industry which have been excellent and rewarding experience and Im very much greatful for being a part in this industry.

THANK YOU

This is to certify that Ms. Haripriya Rajan from Kongunadu Arts And Science College has undergone and completed her Summer Training & Internship Program in "Online Internship in IOT" from 1st June 2021 to 15th June 2021.

During this period, exposure has been given on various technical activities around "Internet Of Things" at Tevatron Technologies Pvt. Ltd.

We found her extremely inquisitive & hardworking. she was very much interested to learn the function of our core division & also willing to put her extra effort to get into the depth of the subject in order to understand it better. Her overall performance has been rated very Good & we would like to wish her for future endeavors.

ABOUT COMPANY

Tevetron Technologies Pvt Ltd is a R & D Design & Services Company focused on Artificial intelligence & Machine language, Internet of things (IoT), Embedded system of Hardware and software.

We have in collaboration with our training division Hex N Bit to provide online internship program. The box features of programs consider such as Product tracking using Product management tools, Access to faculty for monitoring, Mentorship during project, Live sessions for understanding concept, Weekly Assignment, Industry expert webinars, e-learning module and Assessments.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I had undertook a one month Internship programme on embedded system and internet of things under the online platform “Hex N Bit”. Like the other interns, I was also assigned to do program codings and working with embedded system through online compiler. This helped me to gain a deep insight about internet of things(IoT)and how it is done.

I would like to thank Mr.Mukul Agarwal and other tutors for conducting a wonderful internship and providing us with guidance throughout the programme, making sure that the internship was a great success. I would like to thank my department, BA English(Aided) and Kongunadu Arts and Science college for giving me this opportunity to learn something new and to develop my skills.

LIST OF HARDWARE, SOFTWARE & PLATFORM USED

List of Software :

- Code blocks
- Ardunio IDE
- MQTTFX and so on

List of Hardware :

- Node MCU
- Analog sensors (LDR, LM35, etc)
- Digital sensors (PIR, Touch, etc)

- Bluetooth HC05, 12C LCD and so on List of platform :

- Thing Speak IoT
- Cayenne MQTT and so on

INTRODUCTION TO EMBEDDED SYSTEM AND IoT

Embedded systems and IoT life Cycle

Topics Covered:

- Getting around code blocks
- C Basics
- Data types
- Conditional statements, Loops, Control statements
- Array and Strings

SENSOR INTERFACING

What is sensor?

In the broadest definition, a sensor is an object whose purpose is to detect events in its environment. A sensor is a type of transducer, may provide various types of output, but typically use electrical or optical signals.

Benefits of creating an interface:

- Reversing the code dependency direction
- Enhancing portability
- Abstracted complexity
- Increasing reuse and scalability
- Simplifying software maintenance

Topics covered :

- Interfacing LDR

- Brightness control of LED using PWM
- PIR motor sensor

WORKING WITH EMBEDDED SYSTEM AND IOT

What is web server?

A web server is software and hardware that uses HTTP and other protocols to respond to client requests made over the world wide web. A static web server, or stack, consists of computer with an HTTP., Whereas A dynamic web server consists of static web server plus extra software, most commonly an application server and database.

Topics covered :

- Create HTTP server
- Introduction to MQTT protocol

- Uploading to Cayenne
- Receiving from Cayenne

TASKS INVOLVED

The task involved was to do code blocking on various genres of embedded system. We were asked to follow a brief format provided by the platform. Instructions were given regarding. We were asked to do assignment based on code blockings of C programming on online compilers.

During the four weeks of internship, we learned about C program and topics related to embedded systems of hardware, software and Communication protocols.

CONCLUSION

Through my internship at Hex N Bit, I was able to get a better understanding of embedded system and internet of things through hardware and software systems using 'C program' code blocking, how its done and its scopes in present world. I enjoyed my one month internship working with the team. It was really a good experience to learn something new and to work with an esteemed online platform.

It also helped me in my computer knowledge. It was an eye opener for me as through this internship. I understood the workings of LED and LDR using motor sensors.

Introduction

Tea is one of the most popular and lowest cost of beverages in world consumed by large number of people .Owing to its increasing demand ,tea is considered to be the one of the major components of the world beverage market.The global market for hot beverages is forecasted to reach 69.77 billion in value and 10.57 million tons in volume terms by the year 2015 .Tea cultivation is confined only to certain specific requirements of climate and soil.

India is one of the largest tea producers in the world ,although over 70 percent of its tea is consumed within Indian itself . A number of renowned teas ,such as Assam and darjeeling ,also grow exclusively in Indian tea industry has grown to own many global tea brands and has evolved into one of the most technologically equipped tea industry in the world .tea production ,certification ,exportation and all other facets of the tea trade in India are controlled by the Tea Board of India.

It is believed that tea was brought to India by the silk caravans that traveled from China to Europe centuries ago ,though the Camellia sinensis is also native to India and grew in the wild long before its true worth was realized.

Ooty is the most famous for its tea plantations .Connoisseurs will find plenty to choose from:dust and leaf;black and white varieties ;and flavours such as masala,jasmine,cardamom and even chocolate .The Modern store on Botanical Gardens Road has a large variety of teas from the surrounding plantations.Ooty Tea comes to you from the Blue Mountains of Ooty .Made in the famous district of Nilgiris,the tender leaves in Ooty Tea are carefully picked and blended to produce some of the finest tea in the world .

Drinking tea has many health benefits .Here how a daily cup can be good for you ,along with healthy teas you should try.No matter what the reason ,tea can be a tasty beverages since it can be served iced or hot .But its benefits go far beyond refreshment .There is plenty of research showing that drinking tea can actually improve your health.

Based on findings ,a 50 year old frequent tea drinker might develop heart disease almost a year and a half later or live about a year longer than someone who never or seldom drank tea .

Objectives of tea industry

The main objectives of the study areas are as follows :

- To know about the history of the industry
- To know about the organisational structure of the company that is the classification of the members according to their status .
- To know about the manufacturing process followed by the industry
- To understand and know about the work done in various departments .

History of the industry

The Powsland tea industry was established by Mr.MANOJ in the year 2009 .

The industry became a leading manufacturing of bodies employing directly and indirectly 150 peoples from their surrounding

This industry received the best tax paid award in the state of TAMIL NADU .

This industry has seen a lot of changes in the past few years .

It has currently achieved a target tea sales of 15 ton per month and is expecting to achieve a target net sales of 36 ton per month . The industry has arrived in a situation to deliver its products through outside distribution channels .

It is hoping to keep a lasting relationship with the middlemen and the end users .It is aiming at satisfying some of the consumers' needs .The industry focuses on hospitality and gives priority to reliability and virtue .

It has direct as well as indirect distribution system.The services rendered by the industry are spot delivery to wholesalers and retailers in time .It renders quantity purchase scheme to the middlemens and consumers offer and also seasonal as well as off seasonal gifts and discount .

It produces and delivers refreshing ,healthy and quality generated tea flavours . its gross margin of 65 percent or more .It earns net profit above 10 percent of sales and also encourages the consumer to switch on to healthy diet habits . substituting other brand variants .

Strong hold in the market within 5 to 10 years from the time of introduction .it also eliminates substitute demand

The setting and structuring of customers fares is one of the most important functions of the tea factory marketing unit. it will normally be the direct responsibility of the head of marketing unit

Departments

- Purchase Department
- Production Department
- Quality Department
- Store keeping department
- Sales department
- Accounts department

Purchase Department

The industries purchase their raw materials from tea plantation peoples .

Tea leaves are used as raw materials and the other raw materials are wood and machineries .These are the things that are involved in the purchase department .

Farmers are the producers of tea plantations and they are suppliers of these industries .

In delivery of the green leaves, the buyer shall have the right to segregate the same on the basis of the quality of the leaf as per the mutually agreed parameters .in case of the failure on the part of the the seller to supply the agreed quantity of green leaf as per the quality standard ,the buyer holds the liberty to purchase from the third parties and the seller undertakes to make good the additional cost incurred by the buyer in purchasing the green leaves from third parties.

Production Department

The Production Department involves the process of raw materials and manpower and machinery. Production department consists of 50 people .As the tea leaves are heated with the help of machine and wood .Later it gets transferred into tea dust .

These are the things which are present in this department .The tea dust is collected and packed with the help of laborers.

Manufacturing process has four stages:

1. withering
2. rolling
3. fermentation
4. drying

The process has two fold purpose :

1. to dry the leaf

2. to allow the chemical constituents of the leaf to produce the quality peculiar to each type of tea

Quality Department

In this department the quality of tea are recognised .There are 3 quality of tea are produced such as

- A GRADE
- B GRADE
- B+ GRADE

The qualities are calculated as per their taste .Good qualities are known as grade A ,normal are B+ and others are B.

The primary types of tea are black tea, green tea , white tea , oolong tea ,puerh tea,purple tea and herbal infusions .The types are based on the quality but normal people cannot identify the difference between these tea, only the tea taster can identify the difference found in the tea

The qualities of tea are

1. Tea contains antioxidants
2. It has less caffeine

these must present in the tea

Store keeping department

The store keeping department involves the storage of the tea dust. They are stored in the dark places and the dry place until they are transported. Tea dust is packed in big bags and they are stored for future use. 5 people are involved in the store keeping department.

Tea dust are stored far away from anything with a strong odor. store in dark cabinet or completely opaque container

Important thing for storing of tea

- Avoid storing tea in humid areas of the kitchen and houses
- Keep delicate teas separately from strongly scented tea
- Always keep your tea sealed in an airtight container that blocks out all lights .

Glass jars are not acceptable for tea storage because sunlight over time damages the leaves

Sales Department

The tea dust is sold throughout the world .SALES DEPARTMENT involves tea taster , just he tastes the tea and judges the tea dust and the next steps are sales. Various places, tea dust are sold and the sales department involve large number of labours and it also consists the profit or loss of department

At the tea factory ,they made arrangements for visitors to see the process of manufacturing of tea .They are responding to each and every question of visitors about manufacturing. These are the things that are made possible in the sales department .

All over the places tea is supplied in large quality and also supplies quality and taste which are asked by the customers.

Accounts department

The Accounts department is responsible for the inventory management .

The industry involves profit or loss which are calculated at the end of the accounting year.

books maintained are

- cash flow statement
- records purchase and sales
- records asset and liabilities
- item of cost
- vouchers ,documents

Conclusion

Training was helpful to understand the relationship between various departments and the process done in each department. This training helped to gain knowledge about the various activities carried out in each department. It came to know about the management and administration of the company through this training.

Hasis Software Pvt. Ltd. provides Undertaken training Softwares, Commodities, Equities etc. Hasis Software is sufficiently qualified to help customers invest with them and grow with them.

From June to July 2021, I worked in Hasis Software' customer support executive as an inter. There were 14 employees in total.

Description:

My duty at Hasis Software is to help the customers by clearing their doubts about investment and some software development programs and the head of customer executive helped me in how to handle the customer in a gentle way and I handled various types of customers and I learnt a lot of things in Hasis Software.

Learning:

I learned how to use Hasis Software in house software that compared company price to market value. Although the company is very fast-paced and it was challenging to complete all of my duties.

I gained valuable experience, learned how to manage my time and how to organize work to maximize efficiency.

Information:

This is my first internship and therefore I have completed all my duties in Hasis Software and I gained more knowledge and experience in the company.

Conclusion:

In the internship with Hasis Software, I feel I was able to learn as much as I could. The internship experience was important in building my business administration skills. I am grateful to have the opportunity to get practical experience.

COMPANY PROFILE

Allwin Industries was established in the year 2006 at Coimbatore. It is anchored by an extraordinary force of employees. It is a manufacturer of UPVC Fixed windows, UPVC Bay window, UPVC Sliding window, UPVC Casement doors, UPVC Kitchen doors, UPVC Office partitions, UPVC Ventilator and many more. It's vision is to be a premium conglomerate with a clear focus in innovation and uniqueness.

REGARDS

I have undergone internship program at Allwin Industries in the span of 8th July 2021 to 23rd July 2021. Allwin Industries has several functional departments and it's one of the leading companies in UPVC pipes and fittings. While innovation knocked the doors of Allwin Industries, they came out with their wings wide open with flying colours. All their products have a unique and unparallel model which is busy chalking out in market to modulate challenges in to opportunity.

TASKS EXPLORED

- ❖ Have investigated various departments of the company.
- ❖ Supervised the process of preparing the doors and windows.
- ❖ Produced reports and updated the existing accounts.
- ❖ Performed regular backups to ensure data preservation.
- ❖ Designed the window styles.

OUT COME OF THE PROGRAM

In this comprehensive report, I take my privilege in sharing my experience and knowledge gained from Allwin Industries as a part of internship program. I have elaborately discussed about the major aspects which I observed and perceived during the period of my internship program.

The main intention of the program was to acquire wit by exploring practical environment, simultaneously to apply the gained knowledge in various situations. Balancing a scenario plays a vital role in this day to day life; this has been typically induced as a part of the training. The tasks assigned to me ensured in enhancement of LSRW skills to meet the criteria both in academic and non-academic progress. Innovation plays a vital role in this modern world, Allwin Industries training equips, throws its beam light in innovation to fulfill the needs of the customer.

CONCLUSION

The training is been an eye opener with cooperation and contribution of Allwin Industries and the employees. This internship period has led a new path to learn and experience many new things related to UPVC doors and windows. As a result I am able to handle and cope up with public of all strands with due respect.

Finally I conclude that Allwin Industries training is a great platform for a thirsty person to acquire wisdom and knowledge. Finally, the overall working training environment of the company was very comfortable and the staffs were helpful with due respect irrespective of the age, with professional environment.

INTRODUCTION:

I have completed my 15 days internship in RELIX HR CONSULTING. Things which I have learned in my internship are enclosed in my report.

RELIX HR CONSULTING :

RELIX HR Consulting Pvt Ltd , the leading and excellence in recruitment solutions and specialized in resource augmentation . RELIX is headquartered at Bangalore, was established during the year 2010 and was found by young HR

Management, Post Graduates and Dynamic Entrepreneurs . We are provided with an enormous database for the recruitment solutions under IT Recruitment Software Development, Enterprise Resource Planning, IT Infrastructure and under non IT Services we offer Financial Services, Banking, Electronic, Mechanical, Electro mechanical etc.We take a pride in providing the best recruitment services to our active clients in a short span of time and are steadily growing to emphasis our just bornclients.Our clients perceive us as the preferred vendors within a short period of time. We eminently admit ourselves in our client satisfaction and ensure that our recruitment performance are growing rapidly high. We also prefer online recruitment that minimizes the cost ,time and easy to apply for the required posting.

UNDERSTANDING OF RECRUITMENT PROCESS:

Recruitment Process Can be defined as “ it is a way to attract and find potential manpower to fill up the vacant post in the company” .The HR Recruitment Process helps to hire candidates based on their ability to work and attitude which is essential for accomplishment of organizational goals.

The recruitment process in human resource management starts with identification of job requirements, review the job application, screen and shortlist the desirable candidate and the process ends with hiring of right and best candidate for the job.

METHODS OF RECRUITMENT:

There are three significant methods of recruitment which are regularly used in the corporate world namely

- ❖ Direct Recruitment Methods
- ❖ Indirect Recruitment Method
- ❖ Third Party Recruitment Methods

The major difference between direct and indirect method of recruitment is that the organisation send a representative to contact the potential candidate in case of direct recruitment method while in the case of indirect Recruitment Method the candidates are informed about job vacancy through different channel of advertisement .

RECRUITMENT PROCESS STEPS:

Broadly, there are five steps of recruitment process used by many companies in corporate world to increase the efficiency of hiring. The five Recruitment process step ensure that recruitment takes place without any interruption and within the allotted time period. It also helps to maintain compliance and consistency in the recruitment Process.

Five best recruitment process steps:

- ❖ Recruitment planning
- ❖ Strategy development

- ❖ Searching
- ❖ Screening
- ❖ Evaluation and control

TASKS THAT INVOLVED:

- ❖ Consult with employers to identify needs and preferred qualifications.
- ❖ Interview applicants about their experiences, education and skills
- ❖ Contact reference and perform background checks.
- ❖ Inform applicants about job details such as benefits and conditions.
- ❖ Refer qualified candidates.

Conclusion:

From my online internship at RELIX HR consulting was able to get a better understanding in Recruitment process. I enjoyed working with RELIX HR CONSULTING.Im glad that I worked 15 days and gained so much of experience in my life.Good place to work and learn with best mentors.

THANK YOU

Acknowledgement:-

I have undertaken the internship study at S.E.S Matriculation school for the project. I was engaged as an observation (teacher). Internship is a process of training by which intern can develop their future job performance. It is essential to acquire proficiency in the job. Training which interns get during their internship improves knowledge and skills which helps their performance turn excellent. Graduate or post graduate students who attend internship will definitely develop personality. It provides hands-on learning experience to intern. Internship is also called as practical education. Though intern acquire more knowledge of teaching and learn or sharpen the needed skills, attitudes and values associated with efficient performance of their job. Internship helps to modified and skills. Thus internship programmed is an act of imparting or improving or updating knowledge skills of a student which they learn in the form of theory.

Content scope:-

It provides an opportunity to the fresh candidates to experience working condition's and requirement of today's professional business environment. Hence, it can be said that it provides the student with a greater understanding of professional demands and qualifications. It permits them to understand the connection between theory and practice, thus it enhance the student's knowledge of his potential to reach the goals set for various professions.

Objectives of the school internship:-

* To inculcate in student - teacher different skills essential for teaching and learning process like - skill of blackboard writing, voice modulation, introduction to a lesson, explaining a lesson, questioning etc.

- * To develop critical writing skills and reflective skills in student teacher.
- * Develop an understanding of the content and pedagogical principles and various issues and problems related to teaching
- * Develop proper professional attitude, professional ethic, values and interest understand the role and responsibilities of a teacher.
- * Familiarize student teachers with important aspects of the existing educational scenario of the state/province concerned.
- * To make proper use of different teaching aids/materials.

Experience of my own during the internship period of (15 days) :-

I have learnt many new things during ~~the~~ internship

This internship was the starting point for my career. It has been taught many valuable things by observing the teacher and students in the classes. And how to make the student more active in class a teacher. It has been a skillful learning. I have did my observation in the english class, so that I have learnt briefly about (LSRW) Listening, speaking, Reading and writing skills - which may be useful in my future. I have learned one more thing that as a teacher we are going to update our knowledge day by day. So it was a great internship during a period of (15 days).

Tasks that Involved:-

- ⇒ Observing the teacher and students
- ⇒ Observing the doubts of the students and clearance of the teacher.
- ⇒ And how the teachers were facing the problem of teaching due to this pandemic.

⇒ updating my knowledge daily.

⇒ Developing my communication skills.

⇒ And the way of teaching and guiding the students in their best future path.

Conclusion of internship report:-

To conclude I can say it was the most gratifying experience in my life. Through this phase of the internship.

I got an opportunity to contribute a little from my capacity to the school. The challenges helped me to find new route.

I am able to bring transformation in me.

I know it is not the ending of my practice. It is just the beginning. There is a lot that I still have to learn and to go through. The internship programme was an effective one. I learned the skill to be used in the class along with the professional ethics, values and competence to be required.

It was a great experience for me as well as one of the best exposures. I experienced the knowledge, opportunity, experience and exposure which I receive during this internship as surely appreciating.

1. THE VILLAGE BY THE SEA

-Anita Desai

Reviews:

Introduction

The book "THE VILLAGE BY THE SEA" written by Anita Desai . This book is full of novel . This is an Indian family story for young people . Published in London by Heineman in 1982 . It is based on poverty , hardship and sorrow faced by a small rural , community in Indian . The total pages of the book is 156pp [first edition] .

About author

Anita Desai was also known as Anita Mazumdar. English language Indian novelist of children's books . She was born on June 24th , 1931 in Mussoorie [India] . Inspired by her own childhood experience . It contains 156 page and it was a general fiction . This novel was published by Heinemann in 1982 , in London . It was set in the Thul , India .

Plot, Rising Action

This story was about the life of a small India family forced to live in poverty , sorrow , and hardship . The family condition was terrible as their father has been out of work for months , then be a drunkard . A mother was chronically ill and is bed-ridden , needs constant care . Lila took care of her mother and took charge of the entire household . Her bother works in the fields to financially sustain his family . The poverty factor forced Hari to leaves the village and found a job in the teeming city of Bombay . Lila was left at a village to take care of her family and struggle to do so . A kind restaurant owner , Jagu pitied towards him and welcomed him to work in his restaurant . Hari also make friends with a nice person MR.Panwallah and learned watch-making skills . Through his experience , Hari realized that he could be a watchmaker someday .

Climax

At the village help came from an unexpected source , the rich Mr.De Silvas . Lila worked for them when they came for vacation . One day , Lila asked for help from Mr.Dr Silvannto take her mother to the hospital . When Lila's mother was admitted to the hospital in Alibagh , it was the last hope for Lila to keep her mother alive . Their father ran away and stayed at the hospital to accompanied their mother . Lila and her younger sisters also visited their mother every week .

Resolution

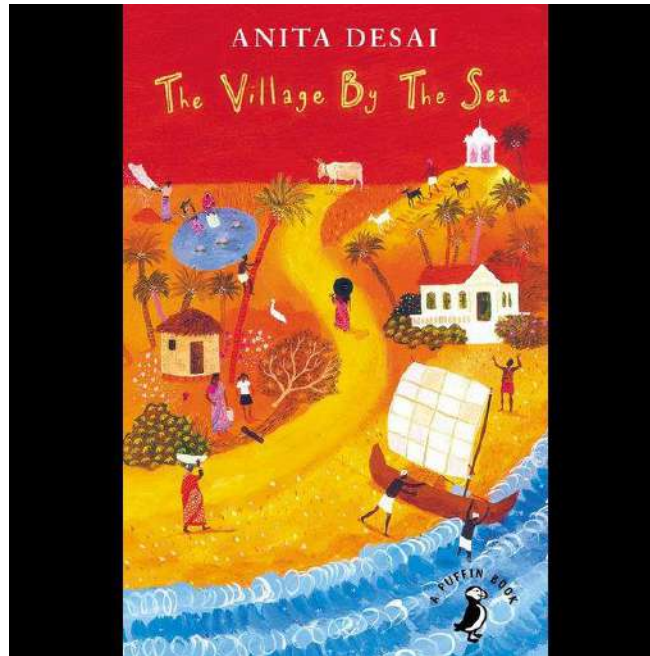

At the end of the story , Hari returned to the village with money to help his family . His family became more stable with help from the rich family Mr.De Silvas . His father turned into a new life as he stopped drinking toddy and paid all his debits . Lastly , they celebrated Diwali happily together in one family .

Connection

It teaches that life is a journey where we become the best version of ourself by fighting with bad situation . A brilliant story brings out the old village of Thul and Hardship of poverty . This book displaced throughout the novel are kindness and importance of mankind reflected in the experience Hari and Lira faced . This basically proved to be very importance as it led to survived in certain circumstance such as when Hari arrived in Mumbai and could not achieve his original plan.

Book Picture

My Take

It is really interesting ! our small group reads only small amount of books but this story inspired us , and letting us to be engaged and interested us into reading other books . I Love the way Lira and Hari manages , finds solution and bear the hardship in their life . It is very sorrowful story about children who faces many problems , I learned many things . From this story thank you for making a book like this . It brings inspiration . This book is really down to earth . It is near to nature for the people who loves the nature . It is in Climatic book . The book is complexment for age 9 and above .

Final Thoughts

The theme of the village by the sea talks about how Hari and Lira struggled to survive the family without a drunken father and a sick mother .

Introduction

The book "SWAMI AND FRIENDS" is written by R.K. Narayan is an English Language Novelist from India . The novel , the first book Narayan world , is set in British India in a fictional town called Malgudi . The book was published in 1935 . There are 459 pages in the book . The genre of the book is 'Novel' . This novel reminds us about our childhood memories such as mischief's in childhood , plucking mangoes . . .etc and in short it briefly explains the sweetness of childhood and importance of friendship .

About author

Rasipuram Krishnaswami Iyer Narayanaswami (10 October 1906 – 13 May 2001) , [1] commonly known as R. K. Narayan , was an Indian writer known for his work set in the fictional South Indian town of Malgudi . He was a leading author of early Indian literature in English along with Mulk Raj Anand and Raja Rao .

Narayan's mentor and friend Graham Greene was instrumental in getting publishers for Narayan's first four books including the semi-autobiographical trilogy of Swami and Friends , The Bachelor of Arts and The English Teacher . The fictional town of Malgudi was first introduced in Swami and Friends .

Plot

Swami and friends is the first of a trilogy of novels written by one of the most prominent writers R.K. Narayan . This episodic text is set in a fictional town of Malgudi . It revolves around the childhood adventures of Swaminathan , the protagonist , and his group of friends . The main element of the text is childhood and specifically the boyhood . R.K. Narayan uses childhood as the medium to show the dual nature of human beings and how the two qualities of 'good and bad' are inscribed in each of us by default since our childhood . This dual nature could be seen in the actions of Swaminathan and in his friends as well .

The conflict of good and bad, right and wrong has always been there since the birth of a man on the Earth. One cannot deny that man has a multiple nature. We respond according to our perception of the situation. When there is a favourable circumstance we act in an optimistic manner and when the opposite happens, we act differently. It is impossible to detach any one of the qualities from a human. The whole conflict of good and bad starts right from the childhood as soon as he begins understanding the things happening around.

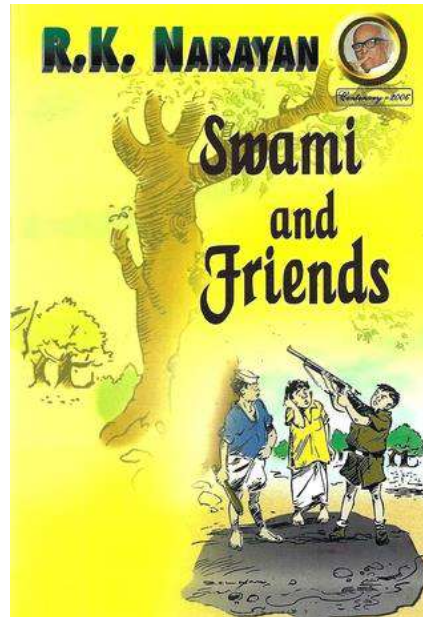

R.K. Narayan tries to capture the boyhood in the most Indian way from different perspectives. He seamlessly seizes the thinking of a child caught up in events beyond his understanding. Swami is torn between the excitement of a revolutionary movement that is about rejecting the old order, and his idolization of the charming son of a representative of that order, a police official in the British colonial system. Critique is given in a tolerant and accommodating manner with an essence of light humour.

As the central theme of the novel is childhood, innocence, fun, fantasies, haste, optimism and curiosity are some of the undetachable characteristics of the text. Nevertheless, many instances can be quoted from the text which gives us an alternate insight. In addition to the above-mentioned characteristics, vanity, envy, haughtiness, callousness and arrogance are inseparable traits attached to the main characters.

My Take

It's a book which is very fun and interesting to read . Even when you finish reading one chapter and you are really tired I have to do something very important your mind still tells you to read the second chapter of the book . The book makes you feel relaxed and especially reading it when you're feeling down on lonely is the best time to read it . I completed reading this book in maximum three days and the very fun chapters the most favorite chapters and I suggest you should read this book because even you're gonna just love it . I would say if you like reading novels this one should be on your list . This book is simple and any age of people can read this . For me , it felt like the story is more realistic in matters off the cricket team formed by Swami and his friends called the MCC , at last of Swami not present there the team loses and this felt like everyone is important for a game And the last chapter made my heart melt of Swami's feeling those description made me go into the shoes of Swami , so I suggest everyone read this book and you can feel how I felt .

Final Thought

The best book I have ever read . It takes me to the time of the book . " It was Monday Morning , Swami was reluctant to open his eyes " . A legendary set of pages started . All the children of this generation must read this . R.K.Narayan is surely the best author that Bharat has ever produced . And also I just watched its episode on Disney Hotstat+ and there were so interesting . I remembered my childhood days when only 2-3 person were having television in their homes and we all used to gather up at our neighbour' house to watch it . It is really Interesting book .

Conclusion

Even if you read it thousands of times still you will find it new . I love the colloquial way of narrating in Narayan's books but the thing that I find more interesting in R.K.Narayan's writings is that he makes his reader think . At the end of the novel he has left a great question for us to think about .

3 . THE FAULT IN OUR STARS

-John Green

Reviews:

Introduction

The book " THE FAULT IN OUR STARS " is a novel by John Green . It is his fourth solo novel , and sixth novel overall . It was published on January 10 , 2012 . There are 313 pages in the fault in our stars book . This story tells " The fault , dear Brutus , is not in our stars , but in ourselves , that we are underlines " .

About Author

John Micheal Green is an American author and youtube content creator . He won the 2008 Printz Award for his debut novel , Looking for Alaska , and his fourth solo novel . The Fault in our stars , debuted at number one on The New York Times Best Seller list in Jnuary 2012 .

Main Characters

Hazel Lancaster : 16 year old protagonist , diagnosed with Thyroid Cancer

Augustus Waters : A 16 year old boy with osteosarcoma , keen and witty .

Mrs.Lancaster : Hazels mother , emotionally strong and caring .

Mr Lancaster : Hazel's father , caring but prone to tears .

Plot

Hazel Lancaster , a 16 years old girl who has been diagnosed with lung cancer , attends a cancer support group . She meets and quickly bonds with a 16 year old boy called Augustus Waters . Sharing their favorite books with each other , they quickly fell in love with each other .

Theme

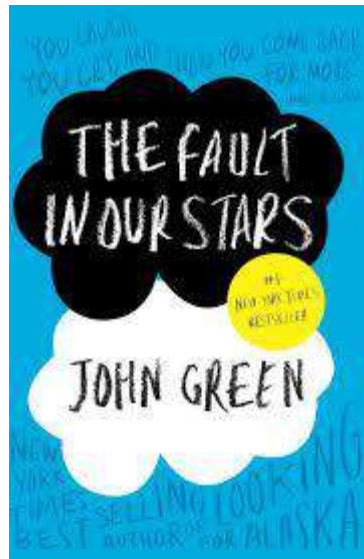

The main theme of The Fault in Our Stars is the insensitivity of the universe . It shows us that our world is not a wish-granting factory . Reality often quite different from our fantasies , the things we want to come true often don't .

Critic - reviews

Be prepared : This is a tearjerker dealing with dying - and surviving the death of a loved one .

My Take

Its a raw story of award winning author JOHN GREEN ambitious work . Its a great addition to young adult fiction . It was written mysteriously that your hear and emotions melt by John green starts with a 16 year old dying lung cancer patient Hazel Grace met a young cancer survivor augustus waters at a Youth support group . Augustus has a painfull screct and charming personality yet strong belive in seeing positivity in every single thing . They both fall in love with each other but are scared to admit . They both initially developed friendship and share common favourit author and book . They both share a trip to visit their favourite author hometown and their they admit their love for each other . Well things get hearted up d uring their trip and they get to know each other lifetime scars . The boy escaping death scene is ironic as he is now afraid to leave his love behind but happy on spending last moments with her . The story end leaves a question mark on ourminds as if Hazel dies due to cancer so the story ends? or her life ended with the death of her lover so the book is completed

Final Thought

This is one of the best book I read . Its definity different from any other . John was able to put what people feel [when they're sad , scared , or sometimes just so hurt , weather its physically or emotionally] into words . This book teaches you how to be romantic like using your partners full name can be very romantic [Hazel Grace how are you ?] It also gave a very inspiring romantic scene in which augustus confesses his love to Hazel he says [Hazel grace i love you . she says augustus He says i love you i am sorry but i do i know that all our labour will turn to dust i know no one will remember us one day and He tells some few universal truths and ends at and i know that i love you]

PLUS

The fighter scene was best i called extreme pain at 9 Because death of augustus was the great horrible 10 . It brought tears to my eyes

AND

It has the infinity scene where spending a small amount of time with some one could be a infinity long and you can show gratitude for your small infinity .

4 . THE GLASS MENAGERIE

-Tennessee Williams

Reviews :

Introduction

The Glass Menagerie is a Memory play by Tennessee Williams that was first performed in 1944 . The play has strong autobiographical elements , featuring characters based on its author , his histrionic mother , and mentally fragile sister Laura . It is an earlier short story , as well as seen play he had written under the title of " THE GENTLEMAN CALLER " .

About Author

Thomas Lanier Williams III (March 26, 1911 – February 25, 1983), known by his pen name Tennessee Williams, was an American playwright and screenwriter. Along with contemporaries Eugene O'Neill and Arthur Miller, he is considered among the three foremost playwrights of 20th-century American drama . At age 33, after years of obscurity, Williams suddenly became famous with the success of The Glass Menagerie (1944) in New York City. This play closely reflected his own unhappy family background. It was the first of a string of successes

Plot

Williams draws a lot of the play from his own experiences . He also had a sick sisters , and and he was gay which Tom is heavily hinted at . The play is about Tom Wingfield , who is unhappy with his life - he feels trapped in his job , and with his family . Tom's mother , Amanda , wants her daughter , Laura , to find a job or husband . Tom brings Jim to meet Laura . Some problems arise . Tom leaves his family in the end .

Tom- the narrator , unhappy with his life

Laura- Tom's sisters , insecure about her limp

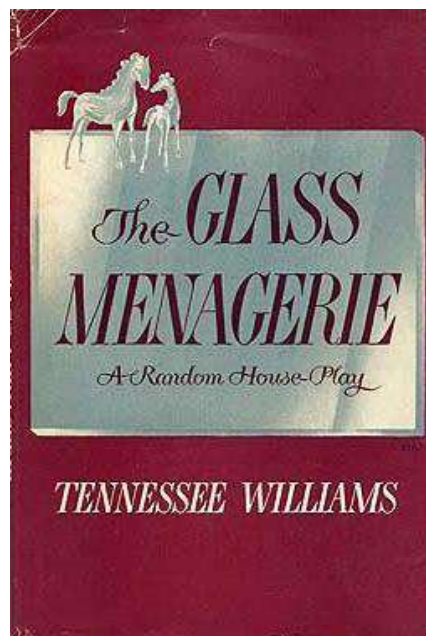

Amanda- Tom and Laura's mother , abandoned by her husband

Jim- a "gentleman caller" , works with Tom

Theme

The theme includes illusions . Tom begins the play talking about how the play explaining that it is a memory , so most of it will not be completely accurate . A lot of the memories are like an illusion .

This play is very unique . It hints heavily at Tom being gay , which was usually aluuded to in this time . It really lasts through time , and some elements are still relevant today . Tom and Amanda are hiding from each other . They fight with each other often , but don't actually discuss their lives . Tom is also hiding his sexuality from Amanda .

My Take

A symbolic play portraying the family ordeals and a focus on set backs one encounters if members of the family within not well knit . It also laces the American society in a subtle way . I stumbled upon this on accident , but when I actually took the time to read it and watch the play , I discovered that I loved the message . I had to read this book for English and I don't regret reading a single word ! The context , story , and emotions expressed by this book are like none other . I was able to uncover the meaning of each scene and enjoyed talking about it with other people many books . It is something which will keep you in a maze you don't want to get out of ! A beautifully written play which forces you to read it again and again . The best psychological story ever . This look like Tennessee's masterpiece . It's a great read simple yet poignant .

Final Thought

By through this " Memory play " , in which Tom recalls scenes from his youth during the height of the Depression . It shows his mother , Amanda , trying to maintain a lost gentility in the midst of overwhelming poverty and cajoling her children into her idea of happiness . Its content are shaped and inspired by memory . As Tom himself states clearly , the play's lack of realism , it's high drama , its overblown and too-perfect symbolism , and even its frequent use of music are all due to its origins in memory . THE GLASS MENAGERIE was Williams first succesful play ; he went on to become one of America's most highly regarded playwrights . And this play setting in A.St. Louis apartment , late 1930s

5 . THE YOUNG ELITES

- Marie Lu

Reviews :

Introduction

THE YOUNG ELITES is a Fantasy novel by novelist Marie Lu . this book was published in October 7 , 2014 . It is the first novel in the trilogy . The second book is called THE ROSE SOCIETY and was released on October 13 , 2015 . The third book , THE MIDNIGHT STAR , was released October 11 , 2016 . It is a fantasy , young adult genre . And there are 344 pages in the book . This book in English Language . The theme of this novel was to always be Honest . This novel is set during 1300s Renaissance Italy , inspired dystopia land . The novel tells the tale of Adelina Amouteru . When a Adelina was young girl a deadly blood fever passes through her land .

About author

The Midnight Star is a fantasy novel by American author Marie Lu and the third and final book in The Young Elites trilogy . It was released on October 11 , 2016 . The book follows the titular character , Adelina Amouteru , after her takeover of the kingdom that once hated her .

Theme

The Young Elites is a coming of age novel because Adelina grows into the person she is meant to be . The theme of this novel was to always be honest . Adelina lies to herself and other throughout the whole book . She knows what she is doing is wrong .

Plot

The Young Elites is a story about a girl, Adelina Amouteru, who caught the devastating Blood Fever as a young child. The Blood Fever does things to a person's body, leaving them with strange markings. The people of the world who didn't catch the fever call them malfettos, or marked people.

Some malfettos, however, have strange and unusual powers given to them by the gods. These children are called The Young Elites. After a terrible accident with her father, Adelina discovers these Young Elites, including a handsome, mysterious prince whom she is attracted to. She begins to train to join in their ranks. I first read the book back in November and I really enjoyed it. Marie Lu is honestly one of my favorite authors and I've read every single one of her books multiple times.

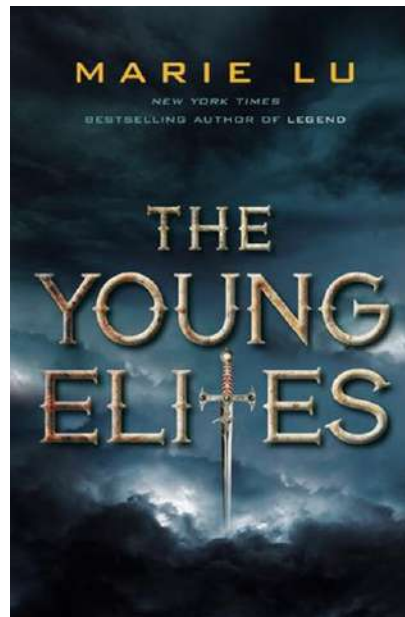

I have only one complaint about the book , and it's the fact that something major happens to one of the characters . It really moves the plot forward , however , and was a plot twist that no one ever saw coming . The Young Elites is the first book in a trilogy . The other two books are The Rose Society and The Midnight Star . If someone were to ask me back in October what my favorite book was , I couldn't give them a straight answer , because I have so many , but if you were to ask me now , I would recommend The Young Elites right off the bat . It is a thrilling book with classic villain vs hero drama , some added elements , some magic woven in , and some kick-butt action scenes . Not only is there romance , but there's friendship and sibling love as well . This book is great for teenagers who enjoy fantasy , romance , and action , and as a reader , I couldn't love it more .

Critic reviews

The young elites is a promising start to a new fantasy series, with an appealing young heroine and a strong cast of antagonists , companions , and potential love interests .

My Take

Oh ! This book is really fabulous , and i couldn't put it down ! The excitement that this book caused me is something that i don't usually feel while reading . The supernatural elements and the thrilling feuds , as well as the hidden romances , are all reasons that i loved it . And as someone that doesn't like reading , this really caught my attention . I finished all my books in 1 month . I did cry a lot . It has also been 1 month since I finished it and i want to cry thinking about it . The way that this book had me hooked was crazy . I would like to reread this series even though it broke me . So if you don't like reading books , I think this book will change your mind .

Final Thought

The style of this book is very nice and It's very easy to follow , however the ending left me with feelings of frustration and it really messed with my emotions . I disagree with the ending but i mean it's a good book . The people who are in any age can read this book . It was so flipping hard to put the book down . It had me squealing with excitement the entire time . I wouldn't put the book down . I recommend this book . It was amazing .

The internship started on 29th May, 2021 with an orientation programme in which we were introduced to our tutors as well as our fellow interns. Followed by was a speech given by Ms. Lathiga , CEO of Literpretation and one of our tutors. We were given a brief introduction of our work and the work process.

On the following days , we were given various topics on which we had to do content writing. The internship started with content writing on poem followed by content writing on prose. I did content writing on some famous poems like "The Rime of the Ancient Mariner", "Brahma", "Shakespeare's Sonnets", "Philomela" etc. In prose I did content writing on quite popular ones such as "I have a dream", "The Second Sex", "Commonwealth literature does not exist" etc.

We were also taught on how we should adhere to the exact format and the importance of avoiding plagiarism while doing the works. Ms. Lathiga also took a detailed class on the cons of plagiarism. The internship was very interesting and effective as we were guided properly and given personal attention by our tutors. The personal feedback by our tutors helped us a lot to correct our mistakes and improve our work. We were also given adequate time for the completion of the work so that work could be done in a better way. The internship ended on June 26th 2021 with a valedictory function. On 14th July I received my certificate for the completion of my internship.

TASKS INVOLVED

The task involved was to do content writing on various genres. The area of focus was on poetry and prose. We were asked to follow a brief format provided by the platform. Instructions were given regarding the font style, size and format. We were asked to give an elaborate work on the topics given by them.

During the first week, we were assigned to do the content writing on poem with feedback sessions after each genre. In the second week, we were assigned tasks in prose. One of the biggest task was to complete the work on time, with the least number of plagiarism and grammatical errors.

To sum up, we had to

- Research on a given topic by referring various sources.
- To segregate the findings under different headings.
- Put it in a proper layout.
- To edit the entire work to avoid grammatical errors and plagiarism.
- Finally, to send the completed work via email.

CONCLUSION

Through my internship at Literpretation, I was able to get a better understanding of content writing, how it's done and it's scopes in present world. I enjoyed my one month Internship working with the team. It was a really good experience to learn something new and to work with an esteemed online platform.

It also helped me to improve my writing skills and to minimise my grammatical errors. It was also an eye opener for me as through this internship I understood the importance of citing works in articles and the risk of plagiarism.

Table of contents:

- * Acknowledgement.
- * Information about the internship position
- * Description of internship experience
- * Conclusion.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT:-

I undertook this internship project and completed the internship report under the guidance of MR. RAVI and MARUTHI ENTERPRISES. I'm grateful to the Maruthi staff for their patience and assistance during my training at their company. It was a good learning experience for me to work with their accounting division, as the project involved many problematic accounting practices.

INFORMATION ABOUT INTERNSHIP POSITION:-

I joined Maruthi for an internship program in the capacity of a Accounting assistant. While the central focus was on conducting adjusting entries, journal, ledger, Financial statements, closing entries. I also handled various tasks as they occurred.

DESCRIPTION OF THE INTERNSHIP EXPERIENCE:-

As an intern in the Accounting department of Maruthi. I got a list of task to complete every day. To get the accounting initiative started, I had to complete the accounting process which was given by the senior officer. I worked as an assistant accountant for the easier and quick submission of accounts to the company.

The tasks I undertook includes:-

- * Refresh the financial data.
- * If our business accepts cash, reconcile against receipts.
- * Review and reconcile transactions.
- * Record payments what I receive, deposit each cash and checks.
- * Record and categorize expenses.
- * Record inventory that receive.
- * Invoice the clients.
- * Pay vendors.
- * Back-up the data.

CONCLUSION:-

From my internship at Maantri, I was able to get a better understanding of how the accounting process works and how effective it is. I enjoyed working with the Masuthi Accounting learn to calculate and implement different accounting strategies.

However, I still have a long way to go in understand the aspects of accounting, and I need to build up my accounting skills as well.

Overall, I found the accounts waiting internship experience to be positive, and I'm sure I will able to use the skills I learned in my career later.

8. Recruitment details.

Database means

A database is an organized collection of structured information, or data, typically stored electronically in a computer system. ... The data can then be easily accessed, managed, modified, updated, controlled, and organized. Most databases use structured query language (SQL) for writing and querying data.

Employee database

An employee database contains critical information, such as each employee's personal information, as well as company-related information such as their payscale, hire date, and more. That database can be used to help you better understand your employees and make data-based decisions that push your company forward.

How do you manage employee database

Employee database software allows you to store, manage, and track all employee data. It holds a variety of employee personnel fields such as name, age, job title, salary, length of service, etc for an HR to refer from

Employee information stored

This information is usually stored electronically but may include paper records as well, so employers should use both physical and electronic data security methods. ... The policy should ensure that records are kept for as long as needed but no longer, and that records are destroyed securely.

Employee Master Data

Employee Master Data module covers comprehensive functions, including employee profile management, employment and turnover management, payroll data management, attendance recording, head account management and so on, which reflects the dynamic status of human resources and thus supports decision-making.

Maintain employee database records

1. Name, address, phone number, and Social Security number.
2. Department or division within the company.
3. Start date with the company.
4. Pay rate.
5. Pay period (weekly or monthly)
6. Whether hourly or salaried.
7. Whether exempt or non-exempt.

CONCLUSION

The work experience I encountered during this internship at Sakthi Auto Ancillary Private Limited has polished my knowledge, skills and abilities in the field of DATA BASE. In the period of my internship I had learnt the importance of time management. It improved my skills and developed different experience to Learn something new in online platform. Overall, my internship at Sakthi Auto Ancillary Private Limited has been a success.

5. Sales Report Per Product and Product Type
6. Sales Report Per Customer or Customer Group
7. Sell-Through Report

Inventory Reports

Keeping your product assortments fresh and relevant is a must if you want to stay in business, so track your inventory like a hawk. You can do that with the following reports:

1.Inventory On Hand:

Your “inventory on hand” report should show how many product units you have in each store as well as the current stock value. That information tells you how much capital you have in your inventory, which in turn can help you in your financial plans and forecasts.

For example, knowing how much capital you have tied up in stock (i.e., current stock value), is quite handy when you’re budgeting for next season.

2. Low Stock

Out of stocks are a no-no in retail. Not only do they lead to lost sales, but out-of-stocks also result in reduced customer satisfaction and can send people straight to your competitors.

Prevent that by regularly generating stock reports that display items that are running low. For best results, set a reorder point for your products and make sure that you're notified when your stock levels reach a certain point so you can replenish as necessary.

3. Product Performance

Ideally, this report should tell you how much merchandise you've sold over a given time period as well as a summary of items sold per month or per week. Use the product performance report to determine which items are worth investing in and which ones shouldn't be re-ordered. A good product performance report should tell you the date when you first sold an item as well as the date of the last sale for that product. If there's a big gap between the first and last sale date, then that may indicate that an item isn't selling as fast as it should. Christmas Elves, a store that sells holiday goods and decor, uses product performance reports extensively in their business. According to Jason McIntyre, owner of Christmas Elves, he's always looking at how fast items are selling per week and uses that to make stock ordering decisions.

4. Sales Summary

This report gives you an overview of your sales for a given time period. Your sales report should also show your cost of goods sold, gross profit, margins, and tax, so you can have a better idea of how much money is actually going back to your business.

5. Sales Report Per Product and Product Type

Having an overview of sales is great, but to get even more meaningful insights, you also need to be granular with your analytics. This is where sales per product reports come in. This type of report makes it easy to identify your best (and worst) selling products, so you can determine the right course of action. If a particular product is selling well, for example, you could consider ordering more of it. On the flip side, if a product isn't performing, then you'd want to know sooner rather than later so you can run promotions before the season ends.

Sales per product type, on the other hand, helps you get a handle on your revenue from a category level. This is a great report to run if you want to identify broader trends or insights.

6. Sales Report Per Customer or Customer Group

It's a good idea to generate "sales per customer" or "sales per customer group" reports. This will allow you to identify your VIP customers as well as those who aren't fully engaging with your brand, so you can tailor your marketing and communications accordingly.

If you know who your top customers are, you could create special VIP events or programs to drive loyalty. On the other hand, if you're looking to engage inactive customers, this report will help you identify them easily.

7. Sell-Through Report

Sell-through is a retail metric that tells you how fast an item is selling. It's expressed as a percentage of units sold versus the number of units available to be sold.

Some reporting platforms, may have the sell-through metric as a separate report, though other solutions can have this under the Product Performance.

In Vend, this measure has been added to our Product Performance Report. The report shows Sell Through Rate as the percentage of units sold versus the number of units that were available to be sold

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I had undertook a fifteen days internship programme in content writing under the online platform “Interpretation”. I was also assigned to do content writing on various prose and poems. This helped me to gain deep insight about content writing and how it is done. I would like to thank Mr A.Arun and other tutors for conducting a wonderful internship and providing us with guidance throughout the programme, making sure that the internship was a great success. I would like to thank my department, B.A ENGLISH [AIDED] and KONGUNADU ARTS AND SCIENCE COLLEGE for giving me this opportunity to learn something new and to develop my skills.

ABOUT THE INTERNSHIP

Interpretation is an online platform that presents the readers with plenty of educational blogs and contents. The platform is managed by literature graduates with multiple experience in interpreting English literary works. The website owned and designer is Mr.A.Arun, who is the CEO of TRIOX technology. Interpretation offers paid internship courses on content writing as well as many other workshops. The duration of courses can be chosen accordingly. The duration of the entire is one month covering various genres of literature. The duration of my internship was for a fifteen days and I have completed my content writing in prose and poem.

The internship started on 06 July, 2021 with an orientation programme in which we were introduced to our tutors as well as our fellow interns. Followed by was a speech given by Mr.A.Arun, CEO of interpretation and one of our tutors. We were given a brief introduction of our work and the work process.

The following days, we were given various topics on which we had to do content writing. The internship started with content writing on poem followed by content writing on prose. I did content writing on some famous poems like "SHAKESPEAR'S SONNETS", "THE RIME OF THE ANCIENT MARINER" etc. In prose I did content writing on quite popular once such as "I HAVE A DREAM", "THE SECOND SEX" etc.

The internship was very interesting and effective as we were guided properly and given personal attention by our tutors. The personal feedback by our tutors helped us a lot to correct our mistakes and improve our work. The completion of the work so that work could be done in a better way. The internship ended on 20th July, 2021 with a valedictory function. On 24th July 2021 I received my certificate for the completion of my internship.

TASKS INVOLVED

The task involved was to do content writing on various genres. The area of focus was on poetry and prose. We were asked to follow a brief format provided by the platform. Instructions were given regarding the front style, size and format. We were asked to given an elaborate work on the topics given by them. During the first week, we were assigned to do the content writing on prose with feedback sessions after each genre. In the second week, we were assigned tasks in poems. One of the biggest tasks was to complete on work time.

- Research on a given topics by referring various sources.
- Put it in a proper layout
- To edit the entire work to avoid grammatical errors.
- To segregate the findings under different headings.
- Finally, to send the completed work via E-Mail.

CONCLUSION

Through my internship at interpretation, I was able to get a better understanding of content writing, how it's done and it's scopes in present world. I enjoyed my fifteen days internship working with the team. It was a really good experience to learn something new and to work with an online platform. It also helped me to improve my writing skills and to minimise my grammatical errors. It was also an eye opener for me as through this internship I understood the importance of citing works in articles and the risk of plagiarism.

Acknowledgments

I had undertook a one month Internship programme in content writing under the online platform “Literpretation”. Like the other interns, I was also assigned to do content writing on various prose and poems. This helped me to gain a deep insight about content writing and how it is done.

I would like to thank Ms.Lathiga and other tutors for conducting a wonderful internship and providing us with guidance throughout the programme, making sure that the internship was a great success. I would like to thank my department, BA English(Aided) and Kongunadu Arts and Science college for giving me this opportunity to learn something new and to develop my skills.

ABOUT LITERPRETATION AND THE INTERNSHIP

Literpretation is an online platform that presents the readers with plenty of educational blogs and contents. The platform is managed by Literature graduates with multiple experience in interpreting English Literary works. The website owner and designer is Ms. Lathiga R.M, who is also a certified IELTS trainer and the COO is Mr. G. Sanjay Singh, Head of the Creativity Department.

Literpretation offers paid internship courses on content writing as well as many other workshops. The duration of courses can be chosen accordingly. The duration of the entire course is three months covering various genres of Literature. The duration of my internship was for a month and I have completed my content writing in poem and prose.

The internship started on 29th May, 2021 with an orientation programme in which we were introduced to our tutors as well as our fellow interns. Followed by was a speech given by Ms. Lathiga , CEO of Literpretation and one of our tutors. We were given a brief introduction of our work and the work process.

On the following days , we were given various topics on which we had to do content writing. The internship started with content writing on poem followed by content writing on prose. I did content writing on some famous poems like “ The Rime of the Ancient Mariner”, “ Brahma”, “ Shakespeare’s Sonnets”, “ Philomela” etc. In prose I did content writing on quite popular ones such as “I have a dream”, “The Second Sex”

“Commonwealth literature does not exist” etc.

We were also taught on how we should adhere to the exact format and the importance of avoiding plagiarism while doing the works. Ms. Lathiga also took a detailed class on the cons of plagiarism. The internship was very interesting and effective as we were guided properly and given personal attention by our tutors. The personal feedback by our tutors helped us a lot to correct our mistakes and improve our work. We were also given adequate time for the completion of the work so that work could be done in a better way.

The internship ended on June 26th 2021 with a valedictory function. On 14th July I received my certificate for the completion of my internship.

TASKS INVOLVED

The task involved was to do content writing on various genres. The area of focus was on poetry and prose. We were asked to follow a brief format provided by the platform. Instructions were given regarding the font style, size and format. We were asked to give an elaborate work on the topics given by them.

During the first week, we were assigned to do the content writing on poem with feedback sessions after each genre. In the second week, we were assigned tasks in prose. One of the biggest task was to complete the work on time, with the least number of plagiarism and grammatical errors.

To sum up, we had to

- Research on a given topic by referring various sources.
- To segregate the findings under different headings.
- Put it in a proper layout.
- To edit the entire work to avoid grammatical errors and plagiarism.
- Finally, to send the completed work via email.

CONCLUSION

Through my internship at Literpretation, I was able to get a better understanding of content writing, how it's done and it's scopes in present world. I enjoyed my one month Internship working with the team. It was a really good experience to learn something new and to work with an esteemed online platform.

It also helped me to improve my writing skills and to minimise my grammatical errors. It was also an eye opener for me as through this internship I understood the importance of citing works in articles and the risk of plagiarism.

1. THE VILLAGE BY THE SEA

-Anita Desai

Reviews:

Introduction

The book "THE VILLAGE BY THE SEA" written by Anita Desai . This book is full of novel . This is an Indian family story for young people . Published in London by Heineman in 1982 . It is based on poverty , hardship and sorrow faced by a small rural , community in Indian . The total pages of the book is 156pp [first edition] .

About author

Anita Desai was also known as Anita Mazumdar. English language Indian novelist of children's books . She was born on June 24th , 1931 in Mussoorie [India] . Inspired by her own childhood experience . It contains 156 page and it was a general fiction . This novel was published by Heinemann in 1982 , in London . It was set in the Thul , India .

Plot, Rising Action

This story was about the life of a small India family forced to live in poverty , sorrow , and hardship . The family condition was terrible as their father has been out of work for months , then be a drunkard . A mother was chronically ill and is bed-ridden , needs constant care . Lila took care of her mother and took charge of the entire household . Her bother works in the fields to financially sustain his family . The poverty factor forced Hari to leaves the village and found a job in the teeming city of Bombay . Lila was left at a village to take care of her family and struggle to do so . A kind restaurant owner , Jagu pitied towards him and welcomed him to work in his restaurant . Hari also make friends with a nice person MR.Panwallah and learned watch-making skills . Through his experience , Hari realized that he could be a watchmaker someday .

Climax

At the village help came from an unexpected source , the rich Mr.De Silvas . Lila worked for them when they came for vacation . One day , Lila asked for help from Mr.Dr Silvannto take her mother to the hospital . When Lila's mother was admitted to the hospital in Alibagh , it was the last hope for Lila to keep her mother alive . Their father ran away and stayed at the hospital to accompanied their mother . Lila and her younger sisters also visited their mother every week .

Resolution

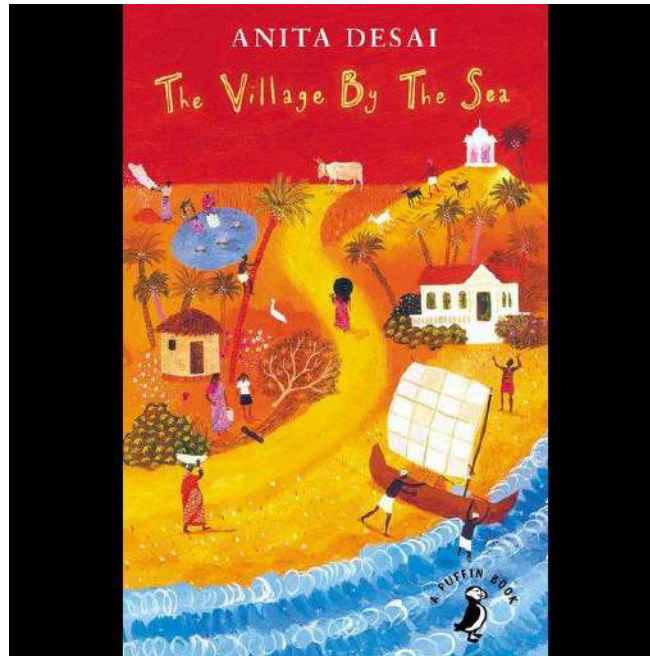

At the end of the story , Hari returned to the village with money to help his family . His family became more stable with help from the rich family Mr.De Silvas . His father turned into a new life as he stopped drinking toddy and paid all his debits . Lastly , they celebrated Diwali happily together in one family .

Connection

It teaches that life is a journey where we become the best version of ourself by fighting with bad situation . A brilliant story brings out the old village of Thul and Hardship of poverty . This book displaced throughout the novel are kindness and importance of mankind reflected in the experience Hari and Lira faced . This basically proved to be very importance as it led to survived in certain circumstance such as when Hari arrived in Mumbai and could not achieve his original plan.

Book Picture

My Take

It is really interesting ! our small group reads only small amount of books but this story inspired us , and letting us to be engaged and interested us into reading other books . I Love the way Lira and Hari manages , finds solution and bear the hardship in their life . It is very sorrowful story about children who faces many problems , I learned many things . From this story thank you for making a book like this . It brings inspiration . This book is really down to earth . It is near to nature for the people who loves the nature . It is in Climatic book . The book is complexment for age 9 and above .

Final Thoughts

The theme of the village by the sea talks about how Hari and Lira struggled to survive the family without a drunken father and a sick mother .

2 . SWAMI AND FRIENDS

-R.K. Narayan

Reviews:

Introduction

The book "SWAMI AND FRIENDS" is written by R.K. Narayan is an English Language Novelist from India . The novel , the first book Narayan world , is set in British India in a fictional town called Malgudi . The book was published in 1935 . There are 459 pages in the book . The genre of the book is 'Novel' . This novel reminds us about our childhood memories such as mischief's in childhood , plucking mangoes . . .etc and in short it briefly explains the sweetness of childhood and importance of friendship .

About author

Rasipuram Krishnaswami Iyer Narayanaswami (10 October 1906 – 13 May 2001) , [1] commonly known as R. K. Narayan , was an Indian writer known for his work set in the fictional South Indian town of Malgudi . He was a leading author of early Indian literature in English along with Mulk Raj Anand and Raja Rao .

Narayan's mentor and friend Graham Greene was instrumental in getting publishers for Narayan's first four books including the semi-autobiographical trilogy of Swami and Friends , The Bachelor of Arts and The English Teacher . The fictional town of Malgudi was first introduced in Swami and Friends .

Plot

Swami and friends is the first of a trilogy of novels written by one of the most prominent writers R.K. Narayan . This episodic text is set in a fictional town of Malgudi . It revolves around the childhood adventures of Swaminathan , the protagonist , and his group of friends . The main element of the text is childhood and specifically the boyhood . R.K. Narayan uses childhood as the medium to show the dual nature of human beings and how the two qualities of 'good and bad' are inscribed in each of us by default since our childhood . This dual nature could be seen in the actions of Swaminathan and in his friends as well .

The conflict of good and bad, right and wrong has always been there since the birth of a man on the Earth. One cannot deny that man has a multiple nature. We respond according to our perception of the situation. When there is a favourable circumstance we act in an optimistic manner and when the opposite happens, we act differently. It is impossible to detach any one of the qualities from a human. The whole conflict of good and bad starts right from the childhood as soon as he begins understanding the things happening around.

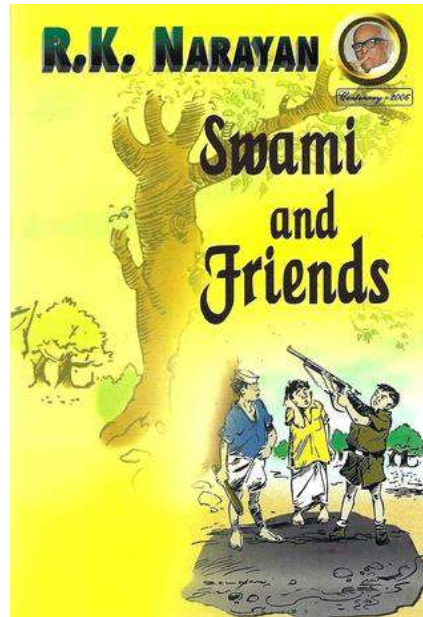

R.K. Narayan tries to capture the boyhood in the most Indian way from different perspectives. He seamlessly seizes the thinking of a child caught up in events beyond his understanding. Swami is torn between the excitement of a revolutionary movement that is about rejecting the old order, and his idolization of the charming son of a representative of that order, a police official in the British colonial system. Critique is given in a tolerant and accommodating manner with an essence of light humour.

As the central theme of the novel is childhood, innocence, fun, fantasies, haste, optimism and curiosity are some of the undetachable characteristics of the text. Nevertheless, many instances can be quoted from the text which gives us an alternate insight. In addition to the above-mentioned characteristics, vanity, envy, haughtiness, callousness and arrogance are inseparable traits attached to the main characters.

My Take

It's a book which is very fun and interesting to read . Even when you finish reading one chapter and you are really tired I have to do something very important your mind still tells you to read the second chapter of the book . The book makes you feel relaxed and especially reading it when you're feeling down on lonely is the best time to read it . I completed reading this book in maximum three days and the very fun chapters the most favorite chapters and I suggest you should read this book because even you're gonna just love it . I would say if you like reading novels this one should be on your list . This book is simple and any age of people can read this . For me , it felt like the story is more realistic in matters off the cricket team formed by Swami and his friends called the MCC , at last of Swami not present there the team loses and this felt like everyone is important for a game And the last chapter made my heart melt of Swami's feeling those description made me go into the shoes of Swami , so I suggest everyone read this book and you can feel how I felt .

Final Thought

The best book I have ever read . It takes me to the time of the book . " It was Monday Morning , Swami was reluctant to open his eyes " . A legendary set of pages started . All the children of this generation must read this . R.K.Narayan is surely the best author that Bharat has ever produced . And also I just watched its episode on Disney Hotstar+ and there were so interesting . I remembered my childhood days when only 2-3 person were having television in their homes and we all used to gather up at our neighbour's house to watch it . It is really an interesting book .

Conclusion

Even if you read it thousands of times still you will find it new . I love the colloquial way of narrating in Narayan's books but the thing that I find more interesting in R.K.Narayan's writings is that he makes his reader think . At the end of the novel he has left a great question for us to think about .

3 . THE FAULT IN OUR STARS

-John Green

Reviews:

Introduction

The book " THE FAULT IN OUR STARS " is a novel by John Green . It is his fourth solo novel , and sixth novel overall . It was published on January 10 , 2012 . There are 313 pages in the fault in our stars book . This story tells " The fault , dear Brutus , is not in our stars , but in ourselves , that we are underlines " .

About Author

John Micheal Green is an American author and youtube content creator . He won the 2008 Printz Award for his debut novel , Looking for Alaska , and his fourth solo novel . The Fault in our stars , debuted at number one on The New York Times Best Seller list in Jnuary 2012 .

Main Characters

Hazel Lancaster : 16 year old protagonist , diagnosed with Thyroid Cancer

Augustus Waters : A 16 year old boy with osteosarcoma , keen and witty .

Mrs.Lancaster : Hazels mother , emotionally strong and caring .

Plot

Hazel Lancaster , a 16 years old girl who has been diagnosed with lung cancer , attends a cancer support group . She meets and quickly bonds with a 16 year old boy called Augustus Waters . Sharing their favorite books with each other , they quickly fell in love with each other .

Theme

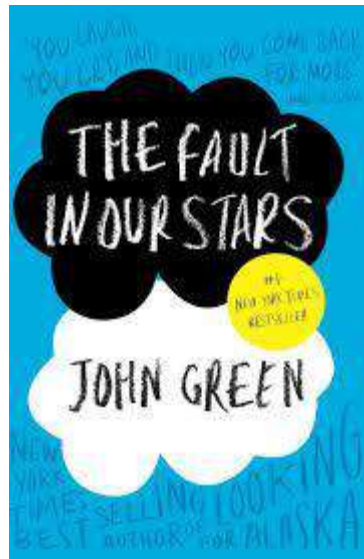

The main theme of The Fault in Our Stars is the insensitivity of the universe . It shows us that our world is not a wish-granting factory . Reality often quite different from our fantasies , the things we want to come true often don't .

Critic - reviews

My Take

Its a raw story of award winning author JOHN GREEN ambitious work . Its a great addition to young adult fiction . It was written mysteriously that your hear and emotions melt by John green starts with a 16 year old dying lung cancer patient Hazel Grace met a young cancer survivor augustus waters at a Youth support group . Augustus has a painfull screct and charming personality yet strong belive in seeing positivity in every single thing . They both fall in love with each other but are scared to admit . They both initially developed friendship and share common favourit author and book . They both share a trip to visit their favourite author hometown and their they admit their love for each other . Well things get hearted up d uring their trip and they get to know each other lifetime scars . The boy escaping death scene is ironic as he is now afraid to leave his love behind but happy on spending last moments with her . The story end leaves a question mark on ourminds as if Hazel dies due to cancer so the story ends? or her life ended with the death of her lover so the book is completed

Final Thought

This is one of the best book I read . Its definity different from any other . John was able to put what people feel [when they're sad , scared , or sometimes just so hurt , weather its physically or emotionally] into words . This book teaches you how to be romantic like using your partners full name can be very romantic [Hazel Grace how are you ?] It also gave a very inspiring romantic scene in which augustus confesses his love to Hazel he says [Hazel grace i love you . she says augustus He says i love you i am sorry but i do i know that all our labour will turn to dust i know no one will remember us one day and He tells some few universal truths and ends at and i know that i love you]

PLUS

The fighter scene was best i called extreme pain at 9 Because death of augustus was the great horrible 10 . It brought tears to my eyes

AND

It has the infinity scene where spending a small amount of time with some one could be a infinity long and you can show gratitude for your small infinity .

4 . THE GLASS MENAGERIE

-Tennessee Williams

Reviews :

Introduction

The Glass Menagerie is a Memory play by Tennessee Williams that was first performed in 1944 . The play has strong autobiographical elements , featuring characters based on its author , his histrionic mother , and mentally fragile sister Laura . It is an earlier short story , as well as seen play he had written under the title of " THE GENTLEMAN CALLER " .

About Author

Thomas Lanier Williams III (March 26, 1911 – February 25, 1983), known by his pen name Tennessee Williams, was an American playwright and screenwriter. Along with contemporaries Eugene O'Neill and Arthur Miller, he is considered among the three foremost playwrights of 20th-century American drama . At age 33, after years of obscurity, Williams suddenly became famous with the success of The Glass Menagerie (1944) in New York City. This play closely reflected his own unhappy family background. It was the first of a string of successes

Plot

Williams draws a lot of the play from his own experiences . He also had a sick sisters , and and he was gay which Tom is heavily hinted at . The play is about Tom Wingfield , who is unhappy with his life - he feels trapped in his job , and with his family . Tom's mother , Amanda , wants her daughter , Laura , to find a job or husband . Tom brings Jim to meet Laura . Some problems arise . Tom leaves his family in the end .

Tom- the narrator , unhappy with his life

Laura- Tom's sisters , insecure about her limp

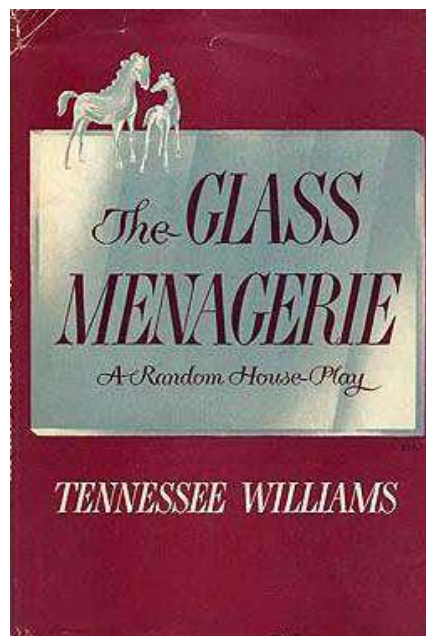

Amanda- Tom and Laura's mother , abandoned by her husband

Jim- a "gentleman caller" , works with Tom

Theme

The theme includes illusions . Tom begins the play talking about how the play explaining that it is a memory , so most of it will not be completely accurate . A lot of the memories are like an illusion .

This play is very unique . It hints heavily at Tom being gay , which was usually aluuded to in this time . It really lasts through time , and some elements are still relevant today . Tom and Amanda are hiding from each other . They fight with each other often , but don't actually discuss their lives . Tom is also hiding his sexuality from Amanda .

My Take

A symbolic play portraying the family ordeals and a focus on set backs one encounters if members of the family within not well knit . It also laces the American society in a subtle way . I stumbled upon this on accident , but when I actually took the time to read it and watch the play , I discovered that I loved the message . I had to read this book for English and I don't regret reading a single word ! The context , story , and emotions expressed by this book are like none other . I was able to uncover the meaning of each scene and enjoyed talking about it with other people many books . It is something which will keep you in a maze you don't want to get out of ! A beautifully written play which forces you to read it again and again . The best psychological story ever . This look like Tennessee's masterpiece . It's a great read simple yet poignant .

Final Thought

By through this " Memory play " , in which Tom recalls scenes from his youth during the height of the Depression . It shows his mother , Amanda , trying to maintain a lost gentility in the midst of overwhelming poverty and cajoling her children into her idea of happiness . Its content are shaped and inspired by memory . As Tom himself states clearly , the play's lack of realism , it's high drama , its overblown and too-perfect symbolism , and even its frequent use of music are all due to its origins in memory . THE GLASS MENAGERIE was Williams first succesful play ; he went on to become one of America's most highly regarded playwrights . And this play setting in A.St. Louis apartment , late 1930s

5 . THE YOUNG ELITES

- Marie Lu

Reviews :

Introduction

THE YOUNG ELITES is a Fantasy novel by novelist Marie Lu . this book was published in October 7 , 2014 . It is the first novel in the trilogy . The second book is called THE ROSE SOCIETY and was released on October 13 , 2015 . The third book , THE MIDNIGHT STAR , was released October 11 , 2016 . It is a fantasy , young adult genre . And there are 344 pages in the book . This book in English Language . The theme of this novel was to always be Honest . This novel is set during 1300s Renaissance Italy , inspired dystopia land . The novel tells the tale of Adelina Amouteru . When a Adelina was young girl a deadly blood fever passes through her land .

About author

The Midnight Star is a fantasy novel by American author Marie Lu and the third and final book in The Young Elites trilogy . It was released on October 11 , 2016 . The book follows the titular character , Adelina Amouteru , after her takeover of the kingdom that once hated her .

Theme

The Young Elites is a coming of age novel because Adelina grows into the person she is meant to be . The theme of this novel was to always be honest . Adelina lies to herself and other throughout the whole book . She knows what she is doing is wrong .

Plot

The Young Elites is a story about a girl, Adelina Amouteru, who caught the devastating Blood Fever as a young child. The Blood Fever does things to a person's body, leaving them with strange markings. The people of the world who didn't catch the fever call them malfettos, or marked people.

Some malfettos, however, have strange and unusual powers given to them by the gods. These children are called The Young Elites. After a terrible accident with her father, Adelina discovers these Young Elites, including a handsome, mysterious prince whom she is attracted to. She begins to train to join in their ranks. I first read the book back in November and I really enjoyed it. Marie Lu is honestly one of my favorite authors and I've read every single one of her books multiple times.

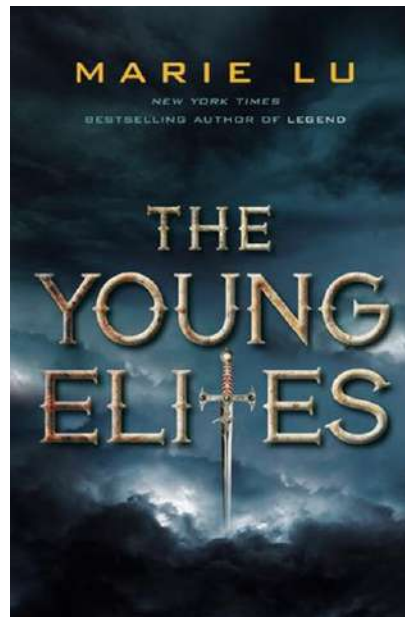

I have only one complaint about the book , and it's the fact that something major happens to one of the characters . It really moves the plot forward , however , and was a plot twist that no one ever saw coming . The Young Elites is the first book in a trilogy . The other two books are The Rose Society and The Midnight Star . If someone were to ask me back in October what my favorite book was , I couldn't give them a straight answer , because I have so many , but if you were to ask me now , I would recommend The Young Elites right off the bat . It is a thrilling book with classic villain vs hero drama , some added elements , some magic woven in , and some kick-butt action scenes . Not only is there romance , but there's friendship and sibling love as well . This book is great for teenagers who enjoy fantasy , romance , and action , and as a reader , I couldn't love it more .

Critic reviews

The young elites is a promising start to a new fantasy series, with an appealing young heroine and a strong cast of antagonists , companions , and potential love interests .

My Take

Oh ! This book is really fabulous , and i couldn't put it down ! The excitement that this book caused me is something that i don't usually feel while reading . The supernatural elements and the thrilling feuds , as well as the hidden romances , are all reasons that i loved it . And as someone that doesn't like reading , this really caught my attention . I finished all my books in 1 month . I did cry a lot . It has also been 1 month since I finished it and i want to cry thinking about it . The way that this book had me hooked was crazy . I would like to reread this series even though it broke me . So if you don't like reading books , I think this book will change your mind .

Final Thought

The style of this book is very nice and It's very easy to follow , however the ending left me with feelings of frustration and it really messed with my emotions . I disagree with the ending but i mean it's a good book . The people who are in any age can read this book . It was so flipping hard to put the book down . It had me squealing with excitement the entire time . I wouldn't put the book down . I recommend this book . It was amazing .

I had undertaken a One month Internship program in “OPERATING PRINTING MACHINES” under the offline platform. I was also assigned to do operating machines and doing DIGITAL WORKS. This helped me to gain deep insight about operating printing machines and how it is done .I would like to Thank MR.D.BALASUBRAMANI & OTHER TUTORS for conducting a Wonderful internship and providing me with guidance throughout the program, making sure that the Internship was a great success. I would like to THANK MY DEPARTMENT, B.A.ENGLISH (AIDED) AND KONGUNADU ARTS AND SCIENCE COLLEGE for giving me this opportunity to learn something new and to develop my skills.

ABOUT THE INTERNSHIP

BEST WISHES PRINTERS is an offline platform that represents the customers with plenty of Printing works and their satisfaction. The office owned by Mr.D.Balasubramani who is the MANAGING DIRECTOR Of BEST WISHES OFFICE. This work place offers paid internship courses on various project's as well as many other workshops. The duration of course can be chosen accordingly. The duration of My Internship was for One month and I've completed to Operate machines, and digital Gravure equipment's.

The Internship was started on 25.06.2021 by giving a brief introduction of the work process. The following days, I were given a small works on which I had to setup and operate. The Internship started with operating machines followed by digital & gravure printing methods.

This Internship was very interesting and effective as I were guided properly and given personal attention by my tutors. The personal feedback by my tutors helped me to correct a lot of my mistakes and improve my work. The completion of my works was done in a better way. The Internship ended on 24th July 2021 with a leaving function. On 25th July I received my Certificate for the COMPLETION OF MY INTERNSHIP.

TASKS INVOLVED

The task involved was to design and print a small visiting card. The area of focus was on designing, font, colour, of the card. I were asked to follow a brief format provided by the platform. Instructions were given regarding the font style, size& format.

During the first week, I were assigned to operate the machines by fixing the screen on the table and exposing some papers.

In the second week, I was assigned to practice digital & gravure printing (but really that was a great stuff).One of the biggest tasks was to complete on work time.

- ✓ To set up and operate printing machine
- ✓ Focusing on printing methods like colour, size, font, alignments
- ✓ To edit& practice the methods of works
- ✓ To segregate the works on papers, bill-books, &cards
- ✓ Finally, to complete the work in a proper way!

CONCLUSION

Through my Internship at BEST WISHES PRINTING PRESS, I was able to get a better understanding of Printing machines, how its dine and its scopes in present world. I really enjoyed my Internship working with them. It was a nice experience to learn something new and to works with offline platform. It also helped me to improve my skills. It was also an eye opener for me, as through this internship I understood the importance of works and the risk of plagiarism.

MULK RAJ ANAND

Coolie

Coolie

MulkRaj Anand

For book lovers from India, there are some few writers who are must read for them considering the kind of role the writers have played in Indian writing over the decades and also considering the quality of their writings.

Rabindranath Tagore, R. K Narayan, kamala Markandeya are a few of the names that comes to my mind. Add to that the name of MulkRaj Anand, one of the finest writers of India. His book “coolie “is a seminal book in Indian Literature. Coolie depicts the life of an young boy who dreams of a life in the hills, but it is forced to travel out of his village to earn a living as a domestic help, porter, factory worker and rickshaw driver which is basically foot rickshaw. These are pages filled with poverty, filth, loss of dignity, abuse by employers, calling of names in the sense that the pages of the book is one unending story of depression following deprivation but slowly the beauty of MulkRaj Anand emerges in the way he surreptitiously heaps scorn on the ruling political class of that time-the Britishers and their cahoots in pre-independence India. It is an absolutely savage book on par with Kamala Markandeya's "Nectar in a serve". The final pages of the book guts you like a sledge hammer. Absolutely highly recommended must read by every Indian book lover.

MulkRaj Anand, Peshawar 1905 to 2004!

This book "written 1935 in London, revised 1971 in Sukhrali , Haryana, India ", published 1972.

(Another of his novel is “untouchable “ published 1935.

Munoo is an orphan (cared for by an aunt who resents doing it) in a hill-country village KANGRA in the north i. e Punjab. His parents died of grief after landlord seized their hand, leaving them destitute.

We follow his journeys and different forms of horrifying “ coolie” employment for one year until Munoo dies of consumption at age 15 heart rending ,yet I believe it must be very accurately described ,and so we can learn a lot from this book.

“ A Study in destination “

“ India seen third class”

“ Annand’s social angers”

Seems to me the author wants to show us the real life suffering of the masses of working Indians, and the details of their severe exploitation by fellow Indians and occasionally by English colonials by moneylenders ,shopkeepers ,factory owners , oversees.

There are bits of humor and lots of bits of human compassion in between all the cruelty.

Half the novel is in Bombay, where Northerners (like Munoo) seek out each other and share each others poverty. Two friends Munoo makes (in Bombay and later in Simla) are labour union organizers ,giving the author a chance to show something of this aspect .we see English and parthans and factory owners agreeing to brutally suppress the union movement.

We see the deeply engrained submissiveness of nearly all the lower classes ,never demanding but rather begging for a living wage, asking for pity , but never asserting their rights .

Munoo is intelligent and had 5 years of school ,so can read and write and he tries to discuss things reasonably .But the result is not much different. The author assigns Munoo to the 2 nd highest caste by birth (kashtrya) presumably so we cannot blame his low caste for his ill treatment.

One Incident :

Someone in crowd shouts that a child has been kidnapped, another shouts it was done by Muslims, so the Hindu crowd goes on a rampage killing Muslims. And vice versa.

“Anand is a political novelist : he sees his characters and their actions in relation to India, and often in relation to the world outside India”, Anand shows good – hearted (as well as evil- acting) people of all classes and colors ,i.e .” The blame is not put squarely on the whites or the Browns.

Animal Farm

Animal Farm

George Orwell

ALL ANIMALS ARE EQUAL BUT SOME ARE MORE EQUAL THAN OTHERS!

In the start, I thought this book would be from the view point of animals; about how they are treated ,how they expect to be treated and how man is cruel towards them. But I am amazed at how Orwell criticizes the political manoeuvres and totalitarian rule, Using animals to explain what humans do. The author beautifully portrays the way a revolution is started to stop what is happening and going full circle comes to the same point it started from. Just the face of power is changed.

This book tells how the ruling class makes fool of the working class ,was their own pleasure.

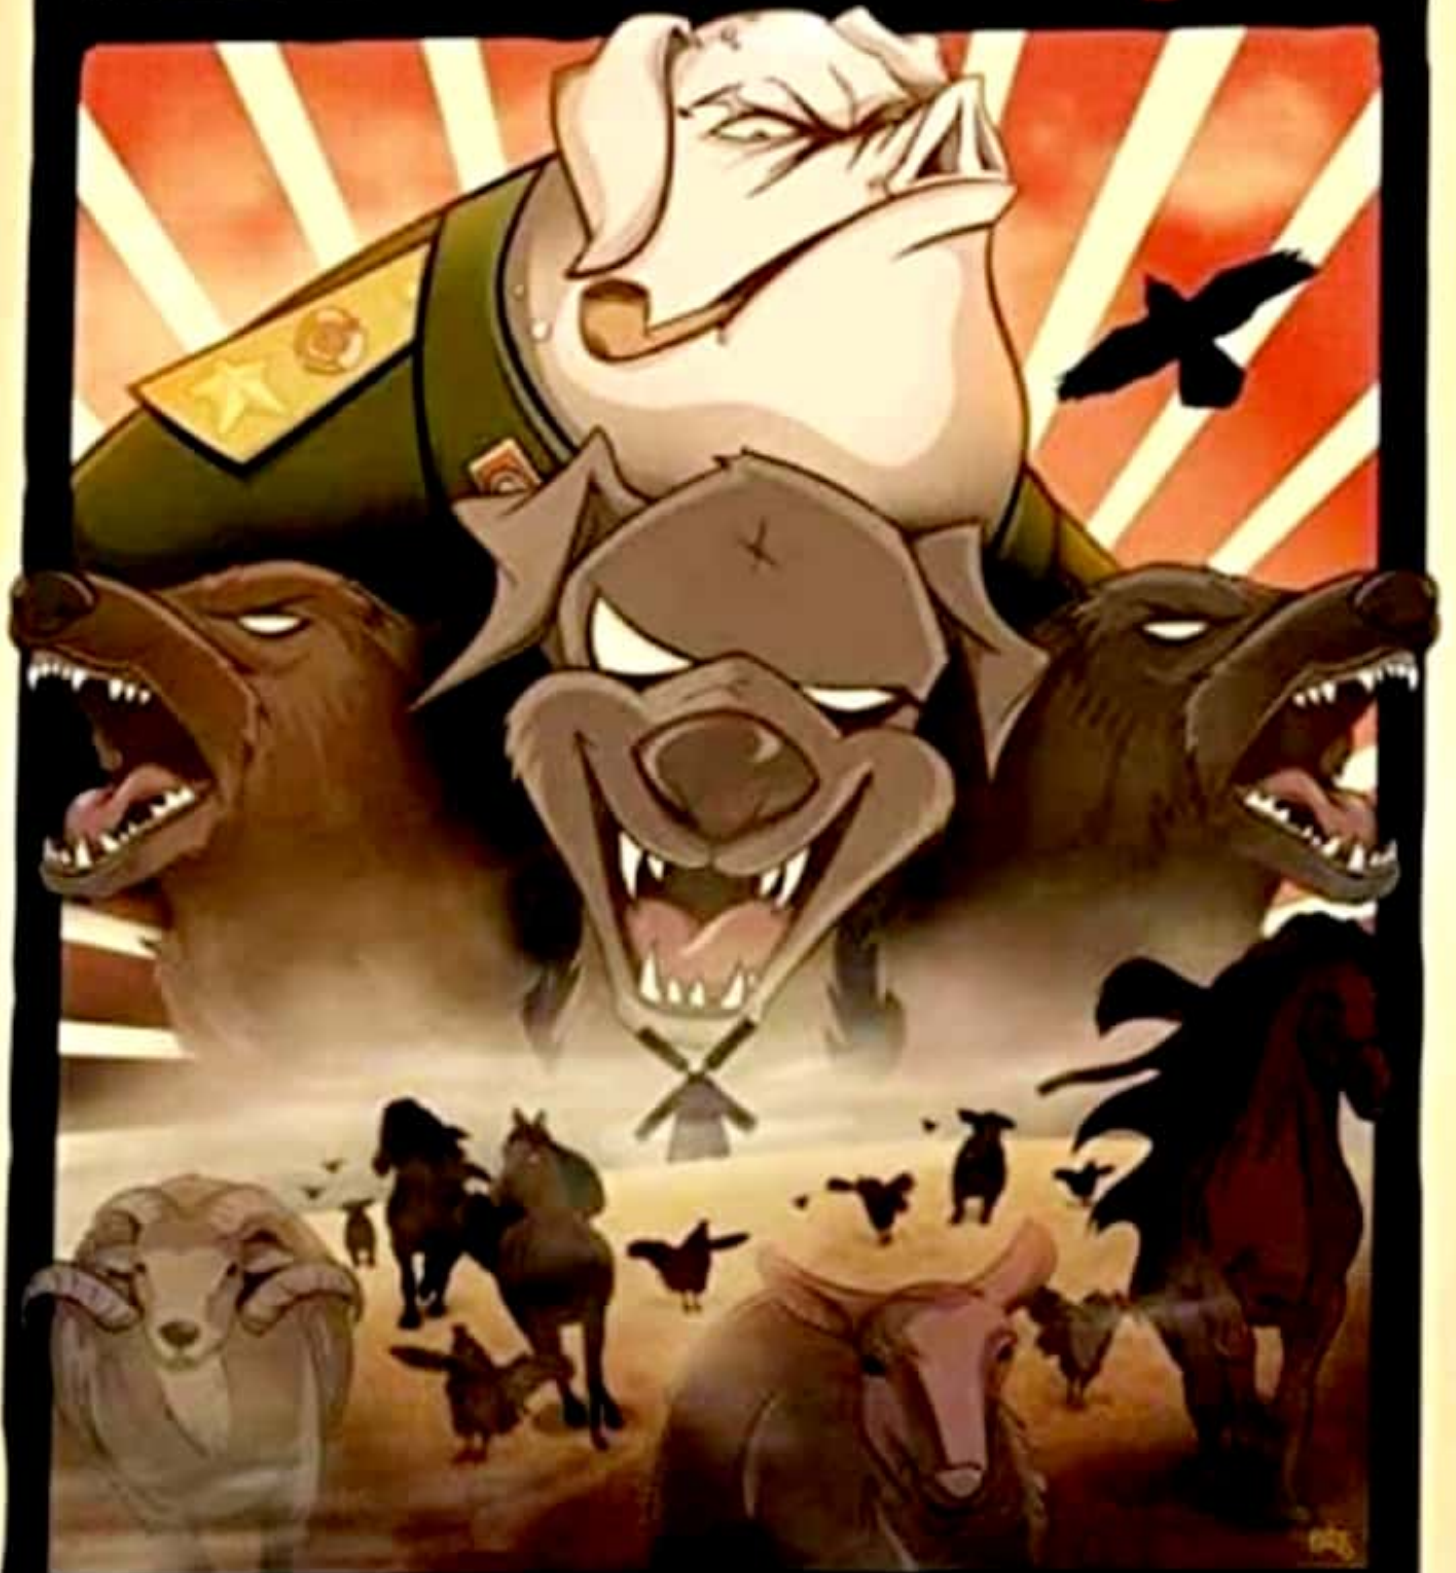

What happens behind the closed doors of power

How the working class is being brain washed that they are happy and satisfied and free despite of the obvious slavery they have been undergoing.

My favourite character was Benjamin (yes a donkey), who remain a neutral through out and says nothing despite understanding everything A huge applause to Orwell for being able to explain human psyche, political and social dilemma wrapped in the form of this story.

ALL ANIMALS ARE EQUAL

★ BUT SOME ANIMALS ARE MORE EQUAL THAN OTHERS ★

The animals of the farm, tired of the continuous abuses of human beings, decide to rebel. And after chasing the owner, they try to create a new order based to rebel. And after chasing the owner, that try to Create a new order based on an ideological concept of equality. It looks like a fairy tale, but its not to entertain the little ones. Mainly, Orwell explored a historical fact through this story.

The creatures outside looked from Pig to man, and from man to pig
And from pig to man again; but Already it was impossible to say

Which was which.

Heart of Darkness

JOSEPH CONRAD

COYOTE CANYON PRESS
ENGLISH LITERATURE SERIES

The heart of the darkness

- By Joseph Conrad

Heart of darkness was originally published in Blackwood's Edinburgh magazine in 1899 and published in the book form in 1902.

This book is the only book that I have very little group on. Conrad creates in his story on amazing setting in which much of human life is analysed and commented on. The book seems to transcend traditional story telling and as a result feels very personal and important. It's greatest feat however comes with its applicability to today. Although much time has passed since it's being return, the themes presented has experienced no wear or tear.... Everything that is presented with in this novel is still relevant today, to a point where it is almost scary.

I found that this book is quite deeply written, with many layers to uncover and hidden themes throughout the book. While this just adds to the quality of the writing it also makes its easy to become lost or confused is found that reading each section is one uninterrupted period was easier for me then taking, break and coming back to it because it really does require your attention and thinking skills to not only understand the main plot of the story but the messages being communicated. Overall I found it an intellectual book that made you think in ways wouldn't have otherwise. I read other reviews that this book wasn't interesting and didn't draw you in, and to a certain level I can relate to that, but I think that to entertain the readers wasn't the writer's purpose, but rather to cause you to question our moral system and accepted definitions.

Some sentences from this book will remain unforgettable. Its language is not so easy. It's dark this book as honest its personal. Through words of Marlow one feels like experiencing the life in the blackest regions of Africa of that time. It lays much emphasis on death, the darkest of encounter in the soul, the lies, the fear, the truth and yet it is relatable. You can feel after reading this book that you shall share his burden. It speaks of moments where courage reaches its limits. All in all the book according to me is a master piece for its description of truth and true to its theme line. " The mind of man is capable of everything ".

The wind in the willows

Kenneth Grahame, Pforzheimer
Bruce Rogers Collection (Library of Congress)

...river went on from Eden

-Keneeth Grahame ‘s

Keneeth Grahame ‘s ‘The wind in the willows is the novel aimed at youngsters. The plot, itself, is not American humour but that of great Britain. In terms of sarcasm, and British related jokes. The novel illustrates a fair mix of the relationships between the human – like animals, and wild life. The narrative acts as an important milestone in post – victorian children’s literature

The characters featured in this book are mole, Rat, Toad, Badger and otter. Toad showing big headed and childlike traits.

Mole shows traits of reasoning and sensible behaviour patterns, Badger shows traits of intelligence. All these characters participate equally in the narrative of both thrilling and neo-noir.

Body when are you going to be sensible and think of your friends, and try and be a credit to them? “one of the problems with Toad is that he enjoys crashing motor vehicles. As a result rat tries to talk some sense into him. Through, this doesn’t work. Toad is illustrated as a child stuck in an adult’s body. Further more, Rat always re-enforces the act of growing up onto toad, and not to be for others.

As a result of Toad’s motorcar crimes he is sent to a deepest, darkest dungeon to pay for his crimes. Toad Hall.... Is an eligible self – contained gentle man residence..... replete with every modern convenience “. Toad being the character showing the most affluence owns his own manner house. Having regained his big headedness. During his sentence, he started to boast about this mansion and great wealth. While being chained to a black weight. Further more, surviving on diet of bread and squeak.

Now then, follow me! Mole first cos I am very pleased with him Rat nest Toad last. Badger starts an invasion at Toad Hall. With this in mind, mole begins to show traits of maturity. As a result of this invasion, Toad's behaviour illustrates the opposite of mole. His ordeal is going back to the dungeon, like a child being anxious about going to their bedroom for misbehaving.

For it has focused a longing in me that is a pain. While in search of missing infant Otter, Rat becomes faced with noise coming from a pair. The quote focuses on the main idea of the authors intention in writing the novel. The focuses being the reasons which cause life to be worthwhile. The sounds travel through Rat like blades with in this in mind, the focus is intended to be answered between the lines.

Conclusion the characters having a variety of different personalities and views of the world. Their human – like traits. In terms of Mole has a good sense of smell. The book is aimed at showing animals living British life in the summer – time. The animals have a justice system, hence Toad was sent to pay for his motor – car crimes. The mansion was invaded by the other animals while Toad was imprisoned and during his escape. Toad 's behaviour is terrible and effects the rest of the animals.

The Beast in The Jungle

Henry James

PRABHAT

Henry James

What a lovely novella!

Sometimes- many times- the true beasts lie with us. Impalpable ,unconscious ,but always somewhat tormenting.

This is truly an unforgettable psychological portrait John Marcher , the protagonist ,is reacquainted with May Bartram ,a woman he knew ten years earlier ,who seized with the belief that his life is to be defined by some catastrophic or spectacular event, lying in wait for him like a “ beast in the jungle”. Miss Bartram is stupefied by this ,but does nothing to make him think that she thinks him odd for such a belief .In fact ,she takes him very seriously and promises to stand by him for this catastrophe to occur.

Thus ,miss Bartram decides to take a flat nearby in London ,and to spend her days with marcher curiously awaiting what fate has in stall fir John of course marcher is a self cantered egoist , believing that he is precluded from marrying so that he does not subject his wife to his “ spectacular fate” The saddest part of the story is that as he sits idly by and allows the best years of his life to pass he takes may down as well ,until the denouncement wherein he learns that the great misfortune of his life was to throw it away and to ignore the love of a good women based upon his preposterous sense of foreboding.

This is the perfect example of a man who ruins his life by being extremely careful and fearful of “ The bad things that might occur if he marries..... He obtained from marrying the women partner ,just because he was too afraid about the treacherous events that he wrongly predicted for himself .That miss Bartram would be willing to waste her life with him no guarantees of anything is in its very essence, is an extreme case of egotism and childishness ,while miss Bartram is a deep ,poetic, mature and intelligent woman . My question is, then what does she find in marcher ? Why does she sacrifice her life for him? These are question that yet need to be answered .What initially began a trivial interest in Marcher and his silly occurrences turned into a fixation perhaps love for him .As he takes her with him she can no longer escape and is immersed in his world. She becomes the victim of his downfall and ignorance .

It is a beautiful and haunting tale of egotism, fear of unknown ,and unrequited love. Henry James invented Marcher as a way to show us the mirror After all, don't we all fear the unknown to a certain extent ?Marcher is a man frozen by his fears and a sense of impending disaster ,and the moral of the story teaches all that only thing we to have to fear is fear itself.

Acknowledgments

I have undertook a seventeen days Internship programme in Web development under the online platform “Subzero”. It was a great experience that I had learn many new things like how to develop a website. This helped me to gain deep inside more knowledge about computers. I would like to thank that Subzero company that they have give many chances for youngsters to gain knowledge and to develop their talents.

And finally I would like to thank my Department B.A. English literature (Aided) and Kongunadu Arts and Science College for giving me this opportunity to learn something and to develop my skills.

About Subzero technologies

Subzero technologies is an online platform and they have their own Industry in Coimbatore. They have give many courses like Website Analysis, Website Optimization, Content writing, Link building etc.

Subzero offers paid internship courses on Web development as well as many other courses. The duration of courses may vary. The duration of my internship is seventeen days and I successfully completed my internship in Web development.

About Web development

The internship started on 09th July. In Web development the building and maintenance of website it's the work that happens behind the scenes to make a website look great work fast and perform well with a seamless user experience.

Web developers or 'devs' do this by using a variety of coding languages. The languages they use depends on the types of tasks they are performing and the platforms on which they are working. Web development skills are in high demand world wide and well paid too- making development a great career option.

And finally the internship ends on 22-07-2021 it was a great experience for me to learn these new things. On 26 July I received my certificate for the completion of my internship.

Tasks involved

The tasks involved was to create a website. Web development take time to study and create a website with industry specific features. In the initial stages it was little bit hard to catch up them and to learn that ideas and techniques and how to prepare. I start a website with a strategic plan with apt design execution such as custom website can provide a best user experience. At finally I learned how to create a website and I learned only little bit but there is vast things about Web developments. Everything is new to learn and my interest on this Web development is never ends.

Conclusion

Through my internship at "Subzero technologies". I was able toget a better learning of Web development how it's done and it's scope in present world. I enjoyed my seventeen days Internship working with the team. It was really new experience to learn something new and to work with an esteemed platform. It is also helped me to improve my computer learning skills and to learn more about them. It was also an eye-opener for me as through this internship. I understood the importance of Web development and the risks involved in that there will be a better scope for this Web development in future.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I had undertook a fifteen days internship programme in content writing under the online platform “Interpretation”. I was also assigned to do content writing on various prose and poems. This helped me to gain deep insight about content writing and how it is done. I would like to thank Mr. A.Arun and other tutors for conducting a wonderful internship and providing us with guidance throughout the programme, making sure that the internship was a great success. I would like to thank my department, B.A ENGLISH [AIDED] and KONGUNADU ARTS AND SCIENCE COLLEGE for giving me this opportunity to learn something new and to develop my skills.

ABOUT THE INTERNSHIP

Interpretation is an online platform that presents the readers with plenty of educational blogs and contents. The platform is managed by literature graduates with multiple experience in interpreting English literary works. The website owned and designer is Mr.A. Arun, who is the CEO of TRIOX technology. Interpretation offers paid internship courses on content writing as well as many other workshops. The duration of courses can be chosen accordingly. The duration of the entire is one month covering various genres of literature. The duration of my internship was for a fifteen days and I have completed my content writing in prose and poem.

The internship started on 06 July, 2021 with an orientation programme in which we were introduced to our tutors as well as our fellow interns. Followed by was a speech given by Mr. A. Arun, CEO of interpretation and one of our tutors. We were given a brief introduction of our work and the work process.

The following days, we were given various topics on which we had to do content writing. The internship started with content writing on poem followed by content writing on prose. I did content writing on some famous poems like "SHAKESPEAR'S SONNETS", "THE RIME OF THE ANCIENT MARINER" etc. In prose I did content writing on quite popular ones such as "I HAVE A DREAM", "THE SECOND SEX" etc.

The internship was very interesting and effective as we were guided properly and given personal attention by our tutors. The personal feedback by our tutors helped us a lot to correct our mistakes and improve our work. The completion of the work so that work could be done in a better way. The internship ended on 20th July, 2021 with a valedictory function. On 24th July 2021 I received my certificate for the completion of my internship.

TASKS INVOLVED

The task involved was to do content writing on various genres. The area of focus was on poetry and prose. We were asked to follow a brief format provided by the platform. Instructions were given regarding the front style, size and format. We were asked to given an elaborate work on the topics given by them. During the first week, we were assigned to do the content writing on prose with feedback sessions after each genre. In the second week, we were assigned tasks in poems. One of the biggest tasks was to complete on work time.

- Research on a given topics by referring various sources.
- Put it in a proper layout
- To edit the entire work to avoid grammatical errors.
- To segregate the findings under different headings.
- Finally, to send the completed work via E-Mail.

CONCLUSION

Through my internship at interpretation, I was able to get a better understanding of content writing, how it's done and its scopes in present world. I enjoyed my fifteen days internship working with the team. It was a really good experience to learn something new and to work with an online platform. It also helped me to improve my writing skills and to minimise my grammatical errors. It was also an eye opener for me as through this internship I understood the importance of citing works in articles and the risk of plagiarism.

INTERNSHIP REPORT

I have done my internship program in Holy Angel Matriculation School. The core objective of the internship program is to gain experience in teaching experience and to share my knowledge on Grammar and Importance and Usage of English Language to the students. Teaching means not only to teach but also to inspire students to love the language and to get to know its importance in the world today.

During the internship program, the topics covered the training period were Communication Skills, Grammar, Importance of English Language, Poetry, Writing Skills, Reading skills and Listening Skills. Though being online classes, students were able to interact well and were able to take up the essence of the language. During this period, not only teachings were but also conducted many activities for all the topics, in order to grab the attention of the students. I was conscious on not being monotonous.

In the topic Communication Skills, students were taught about different kinds of communication and most probably to concentrate on being more assertive in their language. Communication plays a vital role in day to day life, which is not only a part of education but as a basic requirement for life. There are two major types of communication, that is, verbal and non-verbal communication. Verbal Communication deals with the words, in which choice of words, pitch, tone, accent has to be concentrated on. Non- Verbal communication deals with the gesture, posture, facial expression and eye contact.

Grammar plays an important role in language. It is a structure that conveys precise meaning from the writer to the audience. Grammar explains the forms and structure of words and how they are arranged in sentences. In grammar, the topic dealt with the students were parts of speech, spelling, punctuation, an apostrophe, capitalization and the importance of grammar for the use of language in a proper way. Tips were provided to the students to eliminate grammatical errors from the writing and to get rewarded.

Importance of English Language were taught because English is the language of international communication. Although English is not the most spoken language in the world, it is the official language in fifty-three countries and spoken as a first language by around four hundred million people worldwide. English gives access to more entertainment and more access to the internet because English is currently the language of the internet. English can make one smarter because learning a new language makes the brain stronger and more versatile.

Poetry helps in building reading, speaking and listening skills. The unique thing about poetry is that to read loudly, repeat often and share in groups. When children are listening to poems orally, they are building their listening skills. They learn to attend the words they hear and to think what those words mean together. It helps to explore language and vocabulary, tends the children to write, encourages creative thinking and builds love for reading.

Writing Skills deals with grammar, punctuation, spelling, vocabulary, clarity, brevity, engagement, proofreading, revising. Professional writing skills include note taking, letter writing, email writing, MS Office and business writing. Writing is an essential job skill. Writing is the primary basis upon which one's work, learning and intellect will be judged in any profession. Writing equips with communication and thinking skills. Writing preserves our ideas and memories.

Reading improve one's vocabulary and language skills. Reading is an exercise for the mind. It opens the doors of new knowledge to enlighten their minds. The power of reading is about teaching Literacy through using high quality books and creative teaching approaches such as art and drama. Reading improves the ability to understand a written passage of text.

Listening skills allow one to make sense of and understand what another person is saying. Active listening skills can help build relationship, solve problems, ensure understanding and avoid conflict. Listening means paying attention not only to the story, but how it is told, the use of language and voice and how the other person uses his or her body language. It means being aware of both verbal and non-verbal messages. The ability to listen effectively depends on the degree to which one perceive and understand the message.

To conclude with the intern program, the outcome was that I gained a lot of experience in teaching and handling students with patience. Many activities were being conducted in order to make the classes more interactive and interesting. Children were able to know the value of English language and were able to speak a better English with all the lessons taught.

ANIMAL FARM

By

George orwell

Title: Animal Farm

Author: George Orwell

Publisher: Harcourt, Brace and Company

Genre: Allegory, Satire

First Publication: 1945

Language: English

Major Characters: Snowball, Napoleon, Clover, Boxer, Old Major, Muriel, Jones, Squealer, Moses the Raven, Benjamin

Setting Place: A farm somewhere in England in the first half of the 20th century

Theme: Revolution and Corruption, Totalitarianism, Power, Soviet Union

Narrator: Third Person narration

Book Summary:

As ferociously fresh as it was more than a half century ago, this remarkable allegory of a downtrodden society of overworked, mistreated animals, and their quest to create a paradise of progress, justice, and equality is one of the most scathing satires ever published.

As we witness the rise and bloody fall of the revolutionary animals, we begin to recognize the seeds of totalitarianism in the most idealistic organization; and in our most charismatic leaders, the souls of our cruelest oppressors.

Book Review:

Animal Farm by George Orwell captures the themes of oppression, rebellion and history repeating itself. Animal Farm begins like an ambitious children's tale: After Mr. Jones, the owner of Manor Farm, falls asleep in a drunken stupor, all of his animals meet in the big barn at the request of old Major, a 12-year-old pig. Major delivers a rousing political speech about the evils inflicted upon them by their human keepers and their need to rebel against the tyranny of Man.

Shortly after, when Jones forgets to feed the animals, the revolution occurs, and Jones and his men are chased off the farm. Manor Farm is renamed Animal Farm, and the Seven Commandments of Animalism are painted on the barn wall, the most important being "All animals are created equal", which is later changed into "All animals are equal, but some animals are more equal than others." Through the revision of the commandments, Orwell demonstrates how simply political dogma can be turned into malleable propaganda.

"The creatures outside looked from pig to man, and from man to pig, and from pig to man again; but already it was impossible to say which was which."

Animal Farm by George Orwell maybe not really children's book material! There's some heavy stuff. According to Orwell, the book reflects events leading up to the Russian Revolution of 1917 and then on into the Stalinist era of the Soviet Union. He believed, the Soviet Union had become a brutal dictatorship, built upon a cult of personality and enforced by a reign of terror.

“I meant the moral to be that revolutions only effect a radical improvement when the masses are alert and know how to chuck out their leaders as soon as the latter have done their job. The turning-point of the story was supposed to be when the pigs kept the milk and apples for themselves.”

In his essay Why I Write (1946), he wrote that Animal Farm was the first book in which he tried, with full consciousness of what he was doing, “to fuse political purpose and artistic purpose into one whole“. In my humble opinion, he mastered that with flying colors.

The revolt of the animals against Farmer Jones is Orwell’s analogy with the October 1917 Bolshevik Revolution. The Battle of the Cowshed has been said to represent the allied invasion of Soviet Russia in 1918. The pigs’ rise to pre-eminence mirrors the rise of a Stalinist bureaucracy in the USSR, just as Napoleon’s emergence as the farm’s sole leader reflects Stalin’s emergence. The pigs’ appropriation of milk and apples for their own use stands as an analogy for the crushing of the left-wing 1921 Kronstadt revolt against the Bolsheviks, and the difficult efforts of the animals to build the windmill suggest the various Five Year Plans.

“The only good human being is a dead one.”

I am not a history buff and I wasn't acquainted with all of the historic events mirrored in Animal Farm, nonetheless, Orwell's narrative remained accessible, since it can not only be coined to the Russian Revolution but to revolutions and change in leadership in general. Animal Farm by George Orwell details the history of humankind on this planet. History repeating itself. People being driven by money and profit.

“The creatures outside looked from pig to man, and from man to pig, and from pig to man again; but already it was impossible to say which was which.”

Animal Farm by George Orwell closes with the pigs and men in a kind of rapprochement, reflected Orwell's view of the 1943 Teheran Conference that seemed to display the establishment of “the best possible relations between the USSR and the West”—but in reality were destined, as Orwell presciently predicted, to continue to unravel. The disagreement between the allies and the start of the Cold War is suggested when Napoleon and Pilkington, both suspicious, “played an ace of spades simultaneously“. Of course, only one of the two is technically cheating, but Orwell does not indicate which one because such a fact is unimportant.

Another theme of Animal Farm by George Orwell that also strikes a satiric note is the idea of religion being the “opium of the people” (as Karl Marx famously wrote).

Moses the raven's talk of Sugarcandy Mountain originally annoys many of the animals, since Moses, known as a “teller of tales,” seems an unreliable source. At this point, the animals are still hopeful for a better future and therefore dismiss Moses' stories of a paradise elsewhere. As their lives worsen, however, the animals begin to believe him, because “Their lives now, they reasoned, were hungry and laborious; Was it not right and just that a better world should exist somewhere else?”

“Man serves the interests of no creature except himself.”

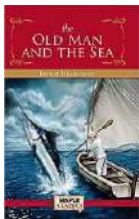

Here, Orwell mocks the futile dreaming of a better place that clearly does not exist. The pigs allow Moses to stay on the farm — and even encourage his presence by rewarding him with beer — because they know that his stories of Sugarcandy Mountain will keep the animals docile: As long as there is some better world somewhere — even after death — the animals will trudge through this one. Thus Orwell implies that religious devotion — viewed by many as a noble character trait — can actually distort the ways in which one thinks of his or her life on earth.

In conclusion, Animal Farm by George Orwell is a novel that completely shook me. A novel that will haunt and accompany for the rest of my life, and that I will continue to dread and look forward to picking up again and again and again.

The Old Man and the sea

By

Ernest Hemingway

Hemingway published ‘The Old Man and the Sea’ in 1952, and it was to be his last major work. It is easy to see the parallels between the old man in the novel, called Santiago, and Hemingway. Santiago suffers from bad luck in his old age despite being a great fisher in his youth. Hemingway had been trying to reclaim the literary success of his older books, such as “The Sun Also Rises” and “For Whom the Bell Tolls.” Even though Santiago could have success in the easier, nearer patches of water, he hunts for a bigger fish further out. Hemingway too searches for a big success and writes this ambitious project.

Santiago’s run of bad luck continues for the 85th day; he hooks a marlin, but the marlin is too smart to panic and die quickly. Santiago must wait for the marlin to get hungry and jump out of the water. In this waiting game with the marlin, he verges onto the point of insanity, brought about by hunger, thirst and a lack of sleep. And yet he never lets go of the fishing line that connects him and the marlin. You, as the reader, as a bystander to this madness, at this point implore Santiago to let go and head back to shore, thinking to yourself “Why doesn’t he just let go?” in frustration. Santiago, on the one hand completely oblivious to your protestations, but also completely aware of them at the same time, does not let go.

Santiago wonders about this connection that he has made with this marlin. The marlin has seen him, and he has seen the marlin. He thinks that the marlin is far more dignified, far more beautiful and is ultimately far more deserving of life than him, with his old, decrepit body, abject poverty and the curse of bad luck that hangs over him. The marlin seems to also know this, seeing its reluctance to give up. And so

Santiago must come up with a reason to justify his own survival. And he points to two things: his will and his intellect. In his moments of madness, he must rely on reason to come to a judgement of how things must be, and then bring about this outcome through his will. Because he can do this, and the marlin cannot, Santiago judges that he should live and the marlin should die; at this point, Santiago is playing at God, and promptly whispers some catechisms, asking the Lord to forgive him.

"The marlin is far more dignified, far more beautiful and is ultimately far more deserving of life than him."

The stream of consciousness that Hemingway uses reflects Santiago's way of coping with his madness. He ultimately asks 3 questions in this battle: "Who am I? Why am I here? What is it about me that deserves to live?" His response to the first question comes with his memories, which are, by definition, personal. His mind drifts to baseball, to the market stalls and to the fields of Africa, where he spent his youth. He traces who he was, and how he has got here. The second question is answered by the fact that he remembers that he has been fishing his whole life, and that fishing has essentially become the sole purpose of his life. All of his fishing experience has led him to this triumph. The third question is answered with a final moment; Santiago relates the story of when he arm-wrestled a man for 2 days in order to win. He identifies himself through his will. Even though this mission is suicide, giving up and letting go would also be a sort of suicide, because he has betrayed who he sees himself as. Time has taken away his body and his fortune, and so, his will is his last stand against time and it is the only thing that he will not relinquish. By extension, he cannot not relinquish the fishing line in his hand.

Santiago's story is ultimately one of failure and his run of bad luck continues. The marlin's blood has entered the ocean and the marlin's corpse, strapped to the side of the boat, is eaten by sharks. He comes back after several days and all there is to show for it is a skeleton. Yet he has succeeded. Not only did he return alive, he also never betrayed his principles or his will. And so he lives to fish another day, whereas the marlin does not.

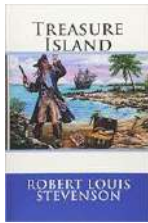

""Even though this mission is suicide, giving up and letting go would also be a sort of suicide, because he has betrayed who he sees himself as.""

Yet the ending is not depressing or demoralising. Santiago goes to bed, has some food when he wakes up and then goes fishing again, to repeat the whole process. Santiago has reaffirmed who he is in his old age; he has justified that he does not need to change. Resolute, unyielding and unchanging. This is what, Hemingway argues, it means to be a man.

Treasure Island

By

Robert Louis Stevenson

Treasure Island is a classic young adult book for good reason, but I have been surprised at how many adults remember this book negatively. Mostly the complaint has been that it was boring. I honestly find this baffling. My oldest son and I read this together, and he has been asking to read it again.

The main reason I think that some people find this book boring is the language. Written in 1883, there was no writing down to children. Also, there is a lot of sailing and nautical terms throughout the book, sometimes so thick that it can be very difficult for elementary children and non-sailing adults to understand what is happening. The beginning couple of chapters are a little slow, but it speeds up very quickly.

Still, this is an amazing adventure book in which young Jim Hawkins, an innkeepers son, gets swept into a pirating adventure. It has all kinds of characters, secret meetings, a map, a talking parrot, a deserted island, fighting, and daring escapes. Also, we can't forget that there is definitely Captain Flint's notorious treasure! It is also a clean book with no curse words (though they talk about them), the fighting is not grotesque, and no sexual content at all. There is an archaic worldview that could be seen as having a hint of racism, but I think even that is quite clean compared to the time it was written.

I do love the fact that Jim plays such an important part in the book without becoming an adult in kid's clothing. He swings from being a helpful mature boy, to an arrogant brat, to willful, to kind, all with a very natural flow that is typical of human nature. He grows as a character without any showy turning point decision which is so typical of modern books. He decides to keep his word even though he risks his life to do so. He decides to be kind. He decides to become a man of character rather than the wildness of the pirates. All of these are small decisions that add up to big results in the end. The book is complex with some hard results for some of the characters. There is no easy outs for mistakes.

My favorite character is Long John Silver because he is so incredibly complex. He is a likable villain who you can't trust, but find yourself cheering for him. He is so charismatic that he grabs you from the beginning. It is believable that even with one leg, he demands respect and fear without raising a sword. The way he manipulates people and events is cunning. He laughs when danger is nearest. He saves lives and kills, but somehow you feel he is somewhat justified in his own mind. You really don't know what will happen next because he is unpredictable without being random. Honestly, I don't know of a better villain in literature!

Dr. Livesly is also a very interesting character. He is the moral compass of the book, but yet he gets dragged along in the adventure with Jim. He is the one character in this book who doesn't seem blinded by the treasure. He is there to make sure Jim gets his portion and is safe. He helps everyone as a doctor, but he is very vocal about his opinion of those he helps. Somehow, even though he stays upright throughout the book, his grumpy compassion makes him a very human character that I am also drawn to. I highly recommend this book to everyone. It is probably a middle school reading level and up. If you struggle to imagine everything that is happening, the 1950's Disney movie is a very abridged version of the book that can give you a good idea of what happens. So many people are currently avoiding these old classics for the sake of political correctness, but the classic has stood the test of time. They say something about human nature that helps us reflect on our own lives.

" " Fifteen men on the Dead Man's Chest Yo-ho-ho, and a bottle of rum! Drink and the devil had done for the rest Yo-ho-ho, and a bottle of rum!" "

The Jungle Books

By

Rudyard Kipling

About the Author:

Rudyard Kipling was born on December 30, 1865, in Bombay, India. He was educated in England but returned to India in 1882.

A decade later, Kipling married Caroline Balestier and settled in Brattleboro, Vermont, where he wrote The Jungle Book (1894), among a host of other works that made him hugely successful. Kipling was the recipient of the 1907 Nobel Prize in Literature. He died in 1936.

"His spots are the joy of the Leopard: his horns are the Buffalo's pride. Be clean, for the strength of the hunter is known by the gloss of his hide."

The adventures of Mowgli, the young man raised by wolves in the jungles of Central India, and his friends Baloo the bear, Bagheera the panther and Kaa the python, as they face the arch villain Shere Khan the tiger, have become so popular that they have achieved an almost mythical status throughout the world.

They were collected by Kipling in The Jungle Book and its sequel, The Second Jungle Book, which also contain other stories set in India which prominently feature animals, such as the well-known 'Rikki-TikkiTavi', which describes the struggles of a mongoose against venomous cobras.

Here presented with brand-new illustrations by Ian Beck, these hugely popular tales, inspired by ancient fables and Kipling's own experiences in India, form a vivid account of the relationship between humans and nature, and will continue to inspire readers young and old.

I think that nearly everyone is familiar with The Jungle Book, written in 1894 by Rudyard Kipling, telling the story of a young boy called Mowgli, who is raised by wolves in the jungle.

Over the years the book has been adapted into many films, most famously by Disney – though whilst a fun children's film, Disney did change a lot of the book to make it more fun and child-friendly. I'm not convinced however, that as many people realise that Kipling wrote a second book in 1895, following more of Mowgli's Adventures in five further stories.

The Jungle Book are stories that kids and adults alike can really embrace, from the wild adventures in the Indian Jungle, to the Anthropomorphism that Kipling uses to teach the readers moral lessons in a fun way.

What Alma Children's Classics has done with their version, is to incorporate the two books into one, inviting book. Also included in the book is extra material for the younger readers, such as a profile of Rudyard Kipling, a quiz and a list of characters which will help them keep track of who's who.

The book is illustrated by Ian Beck and whilst his illustrations are beautiful, I was expecting there to be more of them throughout.

This is one book that everyone should read at some point in their lives as these are stories that will stay with you forever.

The Handmaid's Tale

By

Margaret Atwood

Book Review :

The Handmaid's Tale is one of those books that has completely passed me by until recently. Never mind that fact that it has over a million Goodreads ratings, has sold millions of copies, and has a hit TV show; it still hasn't ever really entered my field of vision, or indeed, my TBR pile.

But when my local Waterstones announced they were starting a book club and the first book would be The Handmaid's Tale in anticipation of its sequel, The Testaments, being released later that month, I finally picked up a copy.

The Story of The Handmaid's Tale:

Set in a miserable dystopian world in 21st century America, The Handmaid's Tale tells the story of Offred, a handmaid who belongs to the family of a commander and his wife, an ex-celebrity who now spends all her days sitting silently in her home, being waited on hand and foot. We learn pretty quickly that handmaids like Offred have one purpose: to bring their Commander's children into the world, replacing the job of the Wives, who were made infertile by – I assume – radiation sickness. That's all the handmaids are there for: child-bearing objects that fulfil the only role their superior women can't.

The story and the world are so rich in details, and every page leaves you wanting to find out more: about Gilead, the mysterious place in which they live; about the roles that society has seemingly been divided into; and about Offred, who dwells on her past and seems desperate to escape the confines of this dismal world where women are to be seen, not heard, and whose primary purpose is to bear children but not, under circumstances, feel any desire towards the people they must procreate with.

The Writing Style:

One of the first things I noticed as the incredibly poetic language Atwood uses throughout, and you can tell she's written her fair share of poetry. She has a unique way of describing things that makes you hang onto every single word. Take, for instance, this part on the very first page, where Offred is simply describing an old gymnasium:

“Dances would have been held there; the music lingered, a palimpsest of unheard sound, style upon style, an undercurrent of drums, a forlorn wail, garlands made of tissue-paper flowers, cardboard devils, a revolving ball of mirrors, powdering the dancers with a snow of light.”

As well as the poetic language, Atwood describes things in such a way that breaks the modern “rules” that state a writer shouldn't describe anything in the scene that's not imperative to the action. However, Atwood does it so well that it never feels like an ‘info dump’ (ahem, I'm looking at you, Ready Player One).

For example, in Offred's bedroom, from just one page of description, we know that there is: a chair, a table, a lamp; on the ceiling, a relief ornament in the shape of a wreath, and in the centre of it, a blank space, plastered over like something has been removed (so there's nothing to tie a rope to); the sunlight coming through a partly-open window with white curtains and a window seat containing a little cushion; a highly polished floor made of narrow boards; an oval rag rug; a picture of blue watercolour irises on the wall (framed with no glass); and a single bed, medium-hard, with a flocked white spread. She sees this room all day, every day, and by now, she has studied every crack and every fleck of dust. She even repeats some of her descriptions later on to further emphasize the monotony. You can see her mind slowly start to unravel as she's stuck in the same endless cycle of being practically part of the furniture.

The Focus on Women Reclaiming Their Power I knew before reading this book that it centres heavily on oppression of women and their fight to get back some power. What I didn't realise is how many profound statements Atwood makes throughout the book that genuinely made me say "oh my god," and immediately reach for a highlighter so I can remember them forever. For instance, there's a paragraph at the beginning of chapter thirteen in which Offred is describing paintings depicting women that men see as erotic:

"Dozens of paintings of harems, fat women lolling in divans ... Studies of sedentary flesh, painted by men who'd never been there. These pictures were meant to be erotic, and I thought they were, at the time; but I see now what they were really about. They were paintings about suspended animation, about waiting, about objects not in use. They were paintings about boredom. But maybe boredom is erotic, when women do it, for men."

I honestly think that one paragraph right there encapsulates the whole purpose of women in Gilead. Just one sentence – the one at the end – is enough to give you chills, and realise just how sad it is that it's still very much true. Closing Thoughts

If you want a book full of heart-racing action, this probably isn't for you. The majority of the book (until the pace suddenly picks up in the last third) is slow, but its slow pace is necessary – it takes an in-depth look at Gilead and the people – especially the women – who live within its boundaries.

Unlike a lot of contemporary dystopian tales that pack in as much action and heroism as they can squeeze into a few hundred pages, The Handmaid's Tale is more of a sociological perception of the world we live in, or more so, the world we could live in. It looks at the gender divide and offers surprisingly accurate insights into how the world (sadly) works, despite the fact that it's set in a dystopian future. Okay, it's an exaggerated view – but without the extreme sci-fi-like elements, the values that Atwood explores are terrifyingly close to reality.

I probably have so much more I can say about this book, but without it turning into a whole thesis, I'll just end by saying this: it's not often that a book makes me think deeply about society and how things could be if the patriarchy was taken to the extreme lengths we see in this book.

The Handmaid's Tale grabbed me at the beginning and didn't let me go – and maybe it never will. And I'm completely okay with that.

BELOVED NOVEL

Beloved begins in 1873 in Cincinnati, Ohio with Sethe, a formerly enslaved woman, and her 18-year-old daughter Denver, who live at 124 Bluestone Road. The site has been haunted for years by what they believe is the ghost of Sethe's sons, Howard and Buglar, run away from home by the age of 13, which she believes was due to the ghost. Baby Suggs, the mother of Sethe's husband Halle, died soon after the boys fled, eight years before the start of the novel.

One day, Paul D one of the enslaved men from Sweet Home, the plantation where Sethe, Halle, Baby Suggs, and several others were once enslaved, comes home. He forces out the spirit, receiving Denver's contempt for driving away her only companion, but persuades them to leave the house together for the first time in years for a carnival. Upon returning home, they find a young woman sitting in front of the house who calls herself Beloved. Paul D is suspicious and warns Sethe, but she is charmed by the young woman and ignores him. Denver is eager to care for the sickly Beloved, whom she begins to believe is her older sister come back.

Paul D begins to feel increasingly uncomfortable in the house and that he is being driven out. One night, Paul D is cornered by Beloved, who demands sex. While they have sex, his mind is filled with horrific memories from his past.

Paul D tries to tell Sethe about it, but can't. Instead, he says that he wants her pregnant. Sethe is afraid to have to live for a baby. When Paul D tells friends at work about his plans to start a new family, they react fearfully. One, Stamp Paid, reveals the reason for the community's rejection of Sethe.

Paul D confronts Sethe, who tells him that after escaping from Sweet Home and joining her children at 124, four horsemen came to a life of slavery at Sweet Home. She ran to the woodshed with her children and tried to kill them all, but only had time to kill her eldest daughter. Sethe says that she was "trying to put [her] babies where they would be safe".

Paul D leaves, telling her love is "too thick"; she retorts that "thin love is no love" adamant that she did the right thing. Sethe comes to believe that Beloved is the daughter she had killed, as "BELOVED" was all she could afford to have engraved on her tombstone. She is overjoyed, holding onto a hope that Halle and her sons will come back and they will all be a family together. Out of guilt, she begins to spend all of her money and try to explain her actions, and loses her job.

Beloved grows bigger and bigger, eventually taking the form of a pregnant woman. Denver feels her fear of Sethe, having known that she killed Beloved, but not having understood why, and that her brothers shared this fear and ran away due to it.

Sethe and Beloved's voices merge together until indistinguishable, and Denver observes that Sethe becomes more like the mother. Denver reaches out to the black community for help, from whom they had been isolated because of envy of baby Suggs's privilege and horror at Sethe killing beloved. Local women come to exorcise beloved. At the same time, a white man, Mr. Bodwin (their landlord, who had offered work to baby Suggs and Sethe) arrives at the house on a horse for Denver, who asked him for a job. Not knowing this, Sethe attacks him with an ice pick, thinking he was schoolteacher coming back for her daughter. The village women and Denver hold her back and beloved disappears.

Denver becomes working member of the community, and Paul D returns to a bed-ridden Sethe, who, devastated at beloved's disappearance, remorsefully tells him that beloved was her "best thing". He replies that Sethe is her own "best thing", leaving her questioning, "Me? Me?" As times goes on, those who knew beloved gradually forget her until all traces of her are gone.

THE GREAT GATSBY

There are many novels which claim that they are the greatest love story off all time. It is only in the case of novel that that statement can be applied and be true.

The novel is set during the roaring 20s in America, narrated by Nick Carraway, a man from a well-to-do family just out of fighting the war and looking to sell bonds. He moves to East Egg, the slightly less grand area in comparison to West Egg, right opposite Gatsby's mansion.

Gatsby is rich, mega-rich, and throws magnificent parties every weekend which the whole town attend. However the host is never completely known by any one person. Gatsby holds a dark secret about his past and how he became so great, a deep lust that will eventually lead to his demise.

The Great Gatsby is in many ways similar to Romeo and Juliet, yet I believe that it is so much more than just a love story. It is also a reflection on the hollowness of a life of leisure. Both are obsessed with controlling time: Juliet wants to extend her present, as her future prospects with Romeo are bleak and Gatsby wants to create a beautiful future by restoring the past.

This is what leads to say his most famous line "can't change the past? Why, of course of can." I could very much relate to this-there have been many moments where I've wished that I could go back to the past and just remain there, for it is a better place.

Similarly to Romeo and Juliet, Fitzgerald's writing is almost like a work of poetry, with waves of literary brilliance creating a rich and lush rhythm which you can almost tap your foot to. The descriptions are jarringly, magnificently beautiful so that it almost made by heart ache.

However unlike in Romeo Juliet, the characters in The Great Gatsby are in themselves very flawed and very hard to sympathise with. But that is the beauty of the book.

Of course you love daisy Buchanan! Of course you hate tom! You even begin to slightly dislike Gatsby, to whom it is not enough for daisy to say that say he loved him, but requires her to

State that she never in her five year marriage loved her husband tom. But Gatsby, to me remains great right until the end of book.

It is ironic that only the idle rich survive this novel, and Fitzgerald through this further enrages the reader about the cruelty and the injustice of the world. The rich are followed to continue to be careless, for that is the dream, is not? To live a carefree life? Yet Fitzgerald highlights the horrors of being a careless person.

"they smashed up things and creatures and then retreated back into their money and vast carelessness." What's amazing in this line is that tom and daisy aren't careless to be malicious that just their nature.

And that in itself is a very sad thing. they do not care for their daughter, for myrtle, for Gatsby nor even each other. Their inability to care is what makes The Gatsby the stark opposites to Romeo Juliet where the lovers are sacrificed and Verona is healed.

In Fitzgerald's masterpiece nothing is made whole by this tragedy. Many consider The Great Gatsby to be depressing because in the end, those who dream not achieve their aspiration. However, the main message that Fitzgerald send to us isn't that dreaming will lead to despair, but that chasing an unworthy dream will lead to tragedy.

JANE EYRE

'Jane Eyre' is a story about an orphan child. Jane's parents died when she was still too little to remember them, and it's her uncle (her mother's brother) who takes her in. Jane's uncle also dies not too long after his, and he makes his wife, Mrs. Reed, promise him that she will take care of this niece as if Jane, her aunt does not fulfil that promise:

She considers Jane a Bourdain and dislikes her for being poor. Her children are no better. Under their mother's indulgence, they mistreat their cousin constantly, always making it clear that she is inferior to them.

Jane's life in Thornfield Hall is more satisfactory than she could have expected. She likes Mrs. Fairfax, the housekeeper, and her little pupil Adele, who soon become very fond of her, too. Jane also gets to know Mrs. Rochester, owner of Thornfield, with whom she develops a strange friendship that eventually turns into love.

But it will be no long until she discovers of the unequal social positions and the difference of age are not the biggest obstacles that their relationship had to overcome. On the eve of their wedding a terrible secret comes out, tearing Jane away from everything she was ever known.

But it will be no long until she discovers that he unequal social positions and the difference of age are not the biggest obstacles that their relationship has to overcome. On their wedding a terrible secret comes out, tearing jane away from everything she has ever known.

It can be noticed, even while going through the first pages of book, that their write has a special sensibility when it comes to the perception of the world around her. This story is presented by Charlotte Bronte through the eyes of its protagonist, what gives us a very personal insight into what jane is thinking and feeling at every point.

And it is especially the way that feelings are expressed what stands out the most while we are reading the descriptions of jane's emotion are so wonderfully well developed that you can even feel them in your own skin, something that not many authors are capable of achieving.

When we speak about jane, we can't ignore the fact that we are seeing one of the most famous feminist characters in history, probably one of the first feminist characters ever. Even though she is not constantly going over it comes to the lives and the capacity of women. This shows up for example, when she has to decide whether to stay with he man she loves and become his mistress, or leave him and field a respectable life somewhere else.

She knows that leave is going to make her unhappy, but she also knows that she could never live knowing that she is acting against her principles.

"I care for myself. The more

Solitary, the more friendless,

The more unsustained I am,

The more I will respect

Myself (...) laws and Principles are not for the Times when there is no

Temptation: they are for Such moments as this, when

Body and soul rise in mutiny

Against their rigour;

Stringent are they; inviolate

They shall be. If at my Individual convenience i Might break them, what

Would be their worth"?

- Charlotte Bronte

I believe Jane's most striking quality is her duality. On the outside, she always looks correct, immutable, even resigned. On the inside she is not only intelligent and observant, but also passionate and sensitive.

I think it is precisely this duality the one that calls Mrs. Rochester's attention the most, at least at the beginning. Jane is only eighteen when they first meet, but she was very mature for her age, and that is something Mr. Rochester gets to discover through their conversations. Jane does not say much, but when she is asked she is always gives a reflective, sensible, and above all, honest answer. As time goes by, Rochester starts to confide her pieces of his past life, and even to ask for her advices. Converse and share thoughts and opinion is something essential for them as a couple. I am aware that the story of the girl who falls in love with a man of a higher social class is not something so peculiar either, but here it is treated in a way that makes it impossible to compare with others already written.

"if all the world hated you

And believed you wicked,

While your own conscience

Approved of you and

Absolved you from guilt, you

Would not be without Friends."

It is indubitable that this book is a masterpiece, but also believe it to be a book of self-discovery. The love story is one of the best I have ever come across, and the construction of every character is thoughtful and detailed. The dialogues simply bristle the skin. So, to everyone who is looking for something powerful, life-changing to read, do not search anymore.

THE INVISIBLE MAN

The narrator, an unnamed black man, begins by describing his living conditions; an underground room wired with hundreds of electric lights, operated by power stolen from the various ways in which he was experienced social invisibility during his life and begins to tell his story, returning to his teenage years.

The narrator lives in a small southern town and, upon graduating from high school, wins a scholarship to an all-black college. However to receive it, he must first take part in a brutal, humiliating battle royal for the entertainment of the town's rich white dignitaries.

One afternoon during his junior year at the college, the narrator chauffeurs Mr. Norton, a visiting rich white trustee, out among the old slave-quarters beyond the campus. By changes, he stops at the cabin of Jim Trueblood, who has caused a scandal by impregnating both his wife and his daughter in his sleep.

Trueblood's account horrifies Mr. Norton so badly that he asks the prostitutes and patients from a nearby mental hospital. The mental patients rail against both of them and eventually overwhelm the orderly assigned to keep the patients under control, injuring Mr. Norton away from the chaotic scene and back to campus.

Dr . Bledsoe, the college president, excoriates the narrator for showing Mr. Norton the underside of black life beyond the campus and expels him.

However, Bledsoe gives several sealed letters of recommendation to the narrator, to be delivered to friends of the college in order to assist him in finding a job so that he may eventually re-roll.

The narrator travels to New York and distributes his letters, with no success; the son of one recipient shows him the letter, which reveals Bledsoe's intent to never admit the narrator as a student again.

Acting on the son's suggestion, the narrator seeks work at the liberty patient factory, renowned for its pure white paint. He is assigned first to the shipping department, then to the boiler room, whose chief attendant, Lucius Brockway, is highly paranoid and suspects that the narrator is trying to take his job. This distrust worsens after the narrator and tricks him into setting off an explosion in the boiler room.

The narrator is hospitalized and subjected to shock treatment, overhearing the doctor's discussion him as a possible mental patient.

After leaving the hospital, the narrator faints on the streets of Harlem and is taken in by Mary Rambo, a kindly old-fashioned woman who reminds him of his relatives in the south. He later happens across the eviction of an elderly black couple and makes an impassioned speech that incites the crowd to attack the law enforcement officials in charge of the rooftops and is conformed by Brother Jack, the leader of a group known as "the Brotherhood" that professes its commitment to bettering conditions in Harlem and the rest of the world.

At Jack's urging, the narrator agrees to join and speak at rallies to spread the word among the black community.

Using his new salary, he pays Mary back the rent he owes her and moves into an apartment provided by the Brotherhood.

The rallies go smoothly at first, with the narrator receiving extensive indoctrination on the Brotherhood's ideology and methods.

Soon, though, he encounters trouble from Ras the Exhorter, a fanatical black nationalist who believes that the Brotherhood is controlled by whites.

Neither the narrator nor Tod Clifton, a youth leader within the Brotherhood, is particularly swayed by his words. The narrator is later called before a meeting of the brotherhood and accused of putting his own ambitions ahead of the group.

In the epilogue, the narrator returns to the present, with her the narrator stating on his ready to return to the world because he has spent enough time hiding from it. He explains that he had from has told her story in that were in order to help people see past his own invisibility, and also to provide a voice for people with a similar plight; "who knows but that, on the lower frequencies, I speak for you?"

A PASSAGE TO INDIA

A young British schoolmistress, Adela Quested, and her elderly friend, Mrs. Moore, visit the fictional city of Chandrapore, British India. Adela is to decide if she wants to marry Mrs. Moore's son, Ronny Heaslop, the city magistrate.

Meanwhile, Dr. Aziz, young Indian Muslim physician, is dining with two of his Indian friends and conversing about whether it is possible to be a friend of an Englishman. During the meal, a summons arrives from Major Callendar, Aziz's unpleasant superior at the hospital. Aziz hastens to Callendar's bungalow as ordered but is delayed by a flat tyre and difficulty in finding a tonga and the major has already left in a huff.

Disconsolate, Aziz walks down the road toward the railway station. When he sees his favourite mosque, he enters on impulse. He sees a strange Englishwoman there and yells at her not to profane this sacred place. The woman, Mrs. Moore, has respect for native customs. This disarms Aziz, and the two chat and part as friends.

Mrs. Moore returns to the British Gentleman's club down the road and relates her experience at the mosque. Ronny Heaslop, her son, initially thinks she is talking about an Englishman and becomes indignant when he learns the facts. Adela, however, is intrigued.

Because the newcomers had expressed a desire to see Indians, Mr. Turton, the city tax collector, invites numerous Indian gentlemen to a party at his house. The party turns out to be an awkward event, due to the Indians timidity and the Briton's bigotry, but Adela meets Cyril Fielding, principal of Chandrapore's government-run college for Indians. Fielding invites Adela and Mrs. Moore to a tea party with him and a Hindu-Brahmin professor named Narayan Godbole. At Adela's request, he extends his invitation to Dr. Aziz.

At Fielding's tea party, everyone has a good time conversing about India, and Aziz becomes friends. Aziz promises to take Mrs. Moore and Adela to see the Marabar caves, a distant cave complex. Ronny Heaslop arrives, and finding Adela "unaccompanied" with Dr. Aziz and professor Godbole, rudely breaks up the party.

Aziz mistakenly believes that the women are offended that he has not followed through on his promise and arranges an outing to the caves at great expense to himself. Fielding and Godbole are supposed to accompany the expedition, but they miss the train.

Aziz and the women explore the caves. In the first cave, Mrs. Moore is overcome with claustrophobia. But worse than the claustrophobia is the echo. Disturbed by the sound, Mrs. Moore declines to continue exploring. Adela Aziz, accompanied by a guide, climbs to upper caves.

As Aziz helps Adela up the hill, she asks whether he has more than one wife. Disconnected by the bluntness of the remark, he ducks into a cave to compose himself. When he comes out, he finds the guide alone outside the caves. The guide says Adela has gone into a cave by herself. Aziz looks around and discovers Adela's field glasses lying broken on the ground. He puts them in his pocket.

Aziz then looks down the hill and sees Adela speaking to another young Englishwoman, Miss Derek, who has arrived with fielding, Mrs. Moore, and Aziz return to Chandrapore on the train. Adela has injured herself while descending from the caves.

During the weeks before the trial, Mrs. Moore is apathetic and irritable. Although she professes her belief in Aziz innocence, she does nothing to help him. Ronny alarmed by his mother's assertion that Aziz is innocent, arranges for her return by ship to England before she can testify at the trial, there Aziz's legal defenders assert that her testimony would have proven the accused innocence.

Adela becomes confused as to Aziz guilt at the trial, she is asked whether Aziz sexually assaulted her. She has a vision of the cave, and it turns out that Adela had, while in the cave, received a shock similar to Mrs. Moore. The echo had disconcerted her so much that she became unhinged. At the time, Adela mistakenly interpreted her shock as an assault by Aziz. She admits that she was mistaken, and the case is dismissed.

Ronny Heaslop breaks off his engagement to Adela and she stay at fielding house until her passage on a boat to England is arranged. After explaining to fielding that the echo was the cause of the whole business, she departs India, never to return.

Although he is vindicated, Aziz is angry that fielding befriended Adela after she nearly ruined his life. Believing it to be the gentlemanly thing to do, fielding convinces Aziz not to seek monetary redress from her. The men's friendship suffers, and fielding departs for England Adela for her money. Bitter at his friends perceived betrayal, he vows never again to befriend a white person, Aziz moves to the Hindu-ruled state of Mau and begins a new life.

Two years later, fielding returns to India. His wife is stella, Mrs. Moore's daughter from a second marriage, however he does not give up his dream of a free and untiled India becomes independent from British rule.
